So...today's my 1 month anniversary on Twitter.

I never imagined that the account would grow this fast.
(I'm around ~54k)

A few people have asked me what my plans are:

I don't have any plans yet.

Everything happened so fast. I haven't had a chance to step back and think.

I'm already getting some interesting offers:

• jobs
• advising
• farming projects
• funding
• consulting
• promoting shitcoins ■
• etc.

I'm saying no to everything.

I'm happy with my life now.
The last thing I want is more responsibilities or commitments.

I want to research, help you, and grow my own portfolio.

I'm going to keep focusing on the process and we'll see what happens.

Some of you want to work in Crypto.

My advice? Put yourself out there.

I was a NOBODY a month ago. (still kinda am)

Write.
Create.
Solve problems.
Add value.

"Be so good they can't ignore you"

Work on your craft relentlessly.
There's always room for quality.

My Principles:

• Think long-term. The space is full of short-term thinkers.

• Transparency. If I talk about something, I'll be honest if I own it.

• Work hard. I spend 12+ hrs to create a thread. If someone invests off of what I say, then it deserves my best effort

And finally,

I appreciate your engagement, friendship, and attention.

I don't take it for granted and will work my hardest to provide value to you.

Thank you for welcoming me into your universe.
