10 free websites so useful they should come pre-bookmarked on every browser:

1. Quillbot

A free paraphrasing website (popular among students).

• Input text and hit Rephrase
• Get AI-inspiration on how to rewrite
• Scan text for plagiarism (built-in feature)
• Credit sources

2. 12ft Ladder

Want to read an article, but there's a paywall?

Simply insert the URL into 12ft Ladder.

All sites have a non-paywall version they send to Google for SEO.

12ft finds the cached, un-paywalled version of the page.

Now you're in.

3. Untools

Benefit from a collection of thinking tools and frameworks.

Categories include:

• Systems thinking
• Decision making
• Problem solving
• Communication

4. UnrollMe

Is your inbox overflowing with email subscriptions?

Use UnrollMe to bulk unsubscribe (it's free).

Another cool feature? “Roll-up” subscriptions into a single email.

You’ll be many steps closer to inbox zero.

5. Otter

Otter is an AI-powered tool that transcribes speech to text (in real-time).

In other words: streamlined meeting notes.

Never forget an essential detail again—

Store and index all your meeting notes in one place.

6. Darebee

Access 1800+ free workouts in this database.

It’s a non-profit (ad-free and product-placement free).

Most of the workouts are body weight and require no equipment.

Yep—Darebee removes your excuses for not exercising.

Get started today.

7. Noun Project

Want to spruce up your next presentation?

Check out Noun Project.

It’s a diverse collection of free + premium icons.

But they’re not your typical stale business ones…

You’ll find trendy icons from top creatives.

8. Open Library

Search millions of books on Open Library,

(available through digital lending).

All it takes to get a ‘library card’?

An email address.

9. Unsplash

Need images for your next project?

Look no further than Unsplash.

Browse an extensive catalog of free images.

With Getty Images running upwards of $499(!) each,

Unsplash will save you thousands.

10. PDF24 Tools

A simple but mighty PDF editing site.

• Edit PDFs without expensive Adobe
• Access 28 editing tools (merge, split, etc.)
• Save money, save time
