Twitter Thread by Savannah Shange

Savannah Shange
@savannahshange

Y'all. Y'ALL! my undergrads put their collective feet into these final keyword projects & un-Presentations for my Black Queer Cultures course. not only did they develop everything from zines to songs, but they actually distributed them to real life audiences! a few examples:

"are you my sister?", a children's book that promotes inclusive siblinghood while dragging Karens. theoretically grounded by the work of L'lerret Ailith, @RaquelWillis_ & @Kai_MG https://t.co/qfzppkutFr

"Baddies4Accountability," an Instagram-based community education campaign & research project, plus bonus playlist. theoretically grounded in the work of @brownstargirl & @ejeris https://t.co/Vv8qaLCcf6

"HARM: Heteronormativity, Accountability, Racism & Masculinity, Toxic," a workshop for Black & indigenous STEM majors to heal from & learn to disrupt harm in the sciences. https://t.co/YO6uZAECcU

"Go Pleasure Project," a throwback Tumblr that curates playlists for the young & queer to liberate and tap into their erotic power. theoretically grounded in work by @adriennemaree & the whole Pleasure Activism posse https://t.co/grLVuEG8cP

"(In)Visibility," a digital zine that uses native plant life as a way to address houselessness in Santa Cruz, and its intersections with racism & abolition. draws on the work of @deanspade & @Kai_MG https://t.co/6tn8B7JwUj shout out to @Kai_MG for the original model for this assignment & for sharing your Queer In the City syllabus- thanks for being my pedagogical mentor in this academic life!

"Unlearning & Relearning What We Know About Gender-Based Violence," a zine that takes aim at performative allyship and issues a manifesto of real solidarity. theoretically grounded in the work of @incitenews, @prisonculture & @razorfemme https://t.co/erq19drls2

"Z & G's Ki's," an incredible podcast that highlights Black queer artists, musicians & activists, including an Afro-Spotlight segment and of course some gossip! Grounded in the work of @meansagittarius & @adriennemaree, & of course @ThisIsTheRead!

https://t.co/KFLebUBjXu

"Different Representations of Desirability," an interactive website that spotlights different forms of racialized desire from gentrification to @theestallion - they have live polling, and even a Kahoot embedded. https://t.co/WpGYzdoEbl