It's important that credit should be given to the right individuals where 'coaching' is concerned. Let's not be blind to some leading contributions that have come from lesser-known names.

Blindly crediting a Rahul Dravid or a Ravi Shastri for years of hard work someone else has put in is not fair. Here's a list of individuals responsible for the success of Team India players...

#TeamIndia #coaches #AUSvsIND

Shubhman Gill -- his father Lakhwinder Singh.

Rohit Sharma -- his childhood coach and go-to man Dinesh Lad.

Cheteshwar Pujara -- his dad Arvind Pujara

Ajinkya Rahane -- Pravin Amre

Virat Kohli -- Rajkumar Sharma, Ravi Shastri

Rishabh Pant -- Tarak Sinha, Ricky Ponting

Mayank Agarwal -- RX Murali

Prithvi Shaw -- Santosh Pingutkar (childhood coach), Mak Waingankar (long-time mentor), Raju Pathak (Rizvi)

R Ashwin -- nobody in particular, grew in stature as he played more cricket

Jasprit Bumrah -- the Mumbai Indians set up, and Bharat Arun

Hardik Pandya -- Jitendra Singh in Baroda & Mumbai Indians set-up

Kuldeep Yadav -- Kapil Pandey

Mohammed Siraj -- Bharat Arun

Mohammed Shami -- Badruddin Siddiqui & Bharat Arun

T Natarajan -- Diwakar Vasu

Wriddhiman Saha -- Jayanta Bhowmick

Navdeep Saini -- Bharat Arun

Washington Sundar -- Hrishi Kanitkar, Bharat Arun
Shardul Thakur -- Mumbai cricket
Hanuma Vihari -- St John's Academy, John Manoj
Ravindra Jadeja -- Saurashtra cricket & MSD
Ishant Sharma -- Shravan Kumar
KL Rahul -- Samuel Jayaraj
Umesh Yadav -- Subroto Banerjee & Pritam Gandhe

These individuals need to be given credit. Coaches at the senior level are merely star polishers. Their job is to manage the players well. Coaching happens when a cricketer is just about beginning.

And due credit to former Mumbai captain Paras Mhambrey, former India batsman WV Raman, former India spinner Narendra Hirwani -- who've put their share of hard work at the India 'A', Under-19 levels and the National Cricket Academy (NCA).

Gautam Gambhir's name should be added next to Navdeep Saini. He was the first to see potential.

Happy to make additions if there are any.
