Twitter Thread by Aurora Intel

Aurora Intel
@AuroraIntel

A large explosion rocked Nashville this morning. Fire Department told to pull back due to concerns of possibly more. Photos emerging show a very crazy situation.

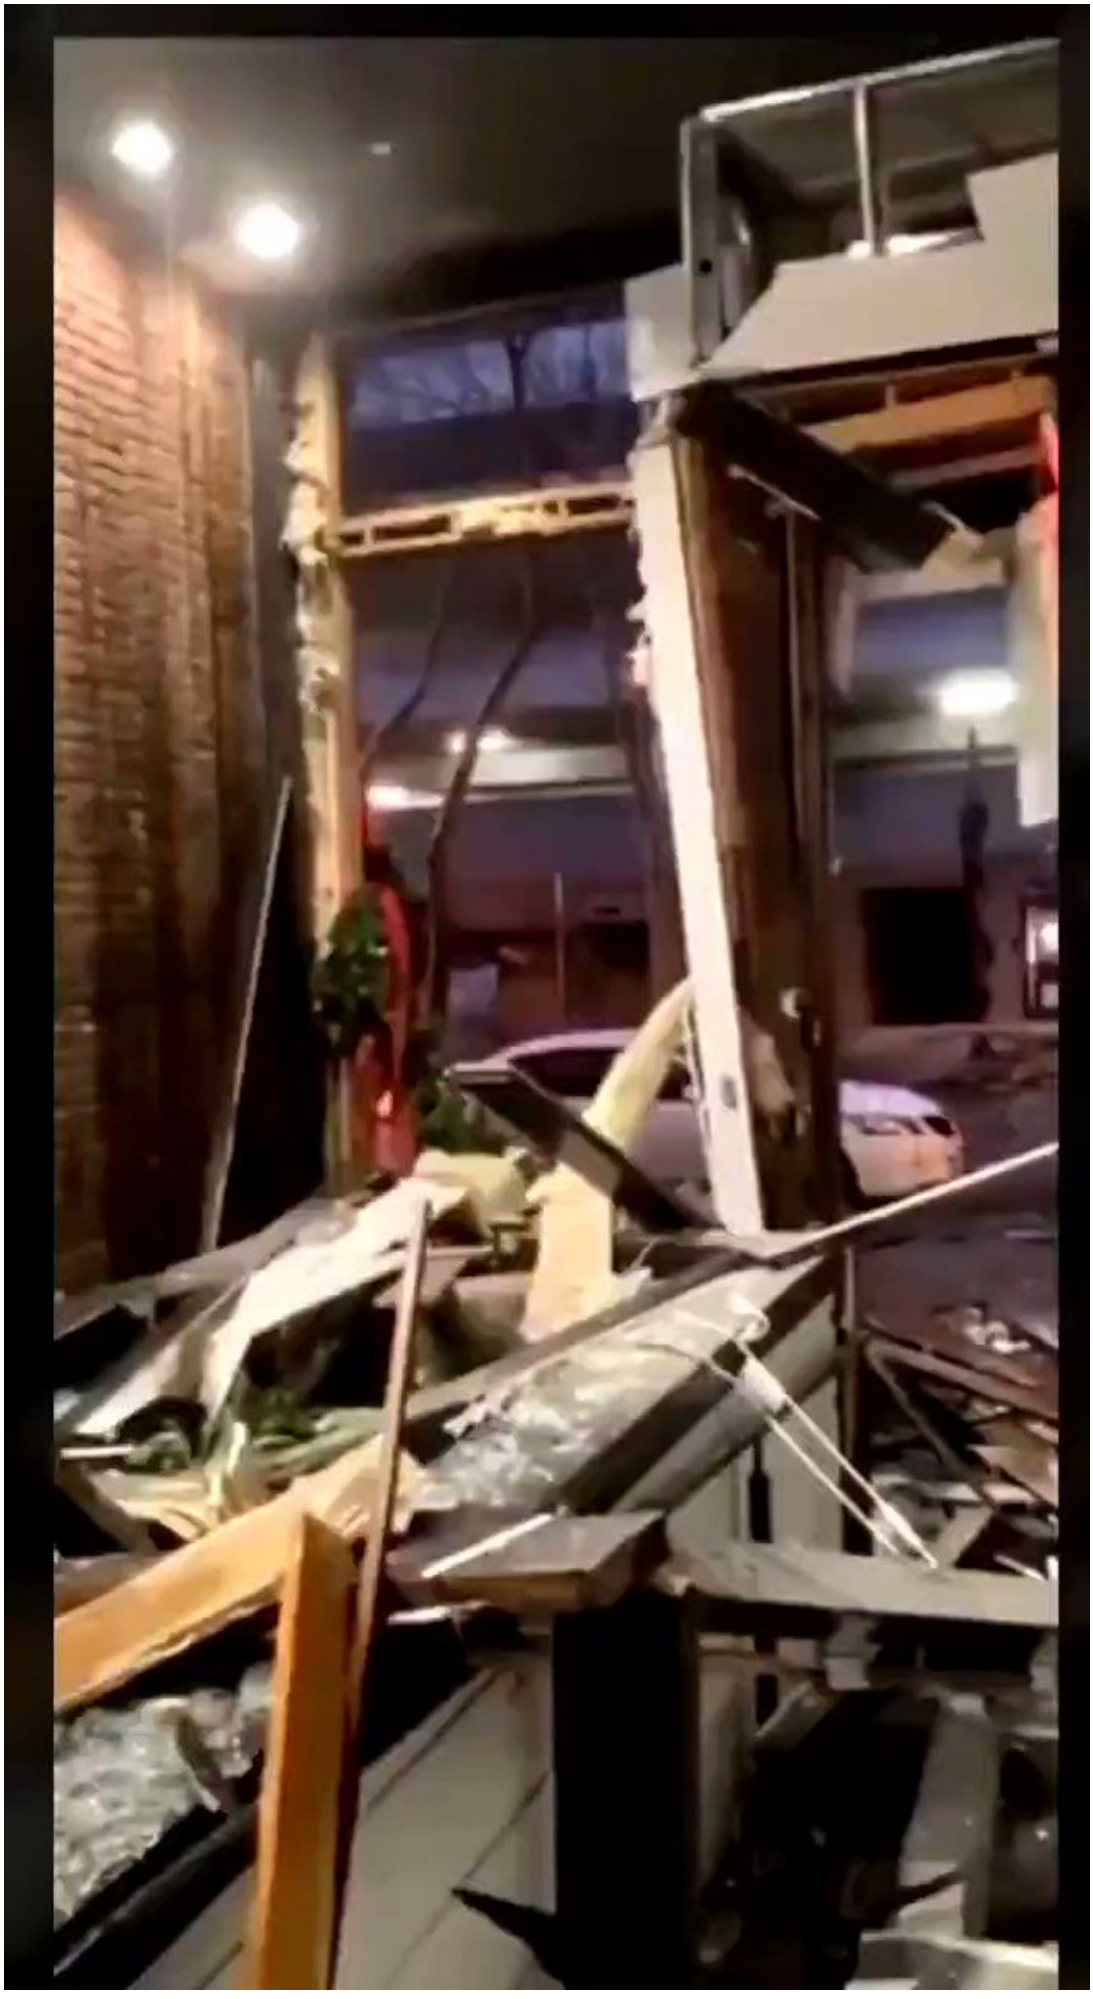

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

Warning, graphic video.

Video from the area showing the aftermath of the explosion in Nashville.

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

Police bomb squads and Fire hazmat on scene. Per procedure units are setting up radiation monitors to assess the situation near the explosion area.

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

Units are being told to move back an additional 2 more blocks from their current postions.

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

Debris was ejected quite far. Some as far as 4-5 blocks away.

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

Another video from the area of the explosion.

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

Video here shows that debris traveled a significant distance and speed breaking through the window.

https://t.co/DpFxPrXx4Y

Distance charted below by @imvexomous

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

> merry christmas #nashville #explosion @NC5 pic.twitter.com/15mNtL3DUd
>
> — Sydney \u2661 (@_sydneyhatfield) December 25, 2020

K9s are in place searching the area at this time.

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

https://t.co/3nc9LCEaDt

> #Nashville Mayor John Cooper says the believe the #nashvilleexplosion was an \u201cintentional act\u201d.
>
> — \u201cBig Rick\u201d Daniels (@OnAirWithRick) December 25, 2020

FBI and ATF are moving on scene to assist in the investigation following the comments from authorities saying that the explosion was intentional.

#Nashville #NashvilleExplosion
[Knish]

https://t.co/vW9qYvaWt7

> Nashville officials believe this explosion was an intentional act. Say they got reports of a suspicious vehicle parked outside AT&T (batman building) before it happened. Hazardous devices unit was en route with "significant explosion" happened. https://t.co/FQzew9LlvI
>
> — Yihyun Jeong (@yihyun_jeong) December 25, 2020

FBI are currently leading the investigation into the explosion.