

Twitter Thread by Dharmic Nationalist ■■ #BleedBhagwa■■

Dharmic Nationalist ■■ #BleedBhagwa■■

@HelloNNewman

Just had a discussion with a good friend, nay, my Dharmic brother about something.

Often we, well I do at least, blame parents upbringing when a kid turns into self hating deracinated person with little love for country.

Question is how much do parents control? ++

It is neither fair nor correct to say it is all their fault. But let me parcel out possible causes and let you think about % blame apportioned

1. Upbringing. Parents setting (or not) example, imparting Dharmic education, teaching value systems in age appropriate way over time
2. Company. The kind of people a kid grows around / with, their value systems and if they mesh with their family's value system
3. Environment. Broader society, TV and other media and their influence
4. Poorva janma karna of parents and kids themselves and what it means in this life.

We all assign % credit for how a kid turns out based on our world view and experiences.

Thoughts?

@wataboutery @GunduHuDuGa @deeps0904 @Valluva_Bharati @Kishoreciyer1 @leelaraagam and others