Twitter Thread by Your Daddy

Your Daddy
@ToyosiGodwin

GETTING A REMOTE JOB FROM THE ABROAD: THE BASICS

I have some free time now. I can't promise that this thread will not be lengthy, but I can assure you that it would be valuable.

So, please, retweet. Be a contributor to someone's growth.

In the last one month, at least 4 people from the last w/shop have gotten remote jobs paying them in dollars. It's not rocket science, if you can follow the steps in this thread, you can do it. That's all for the introduction, let's get to business.

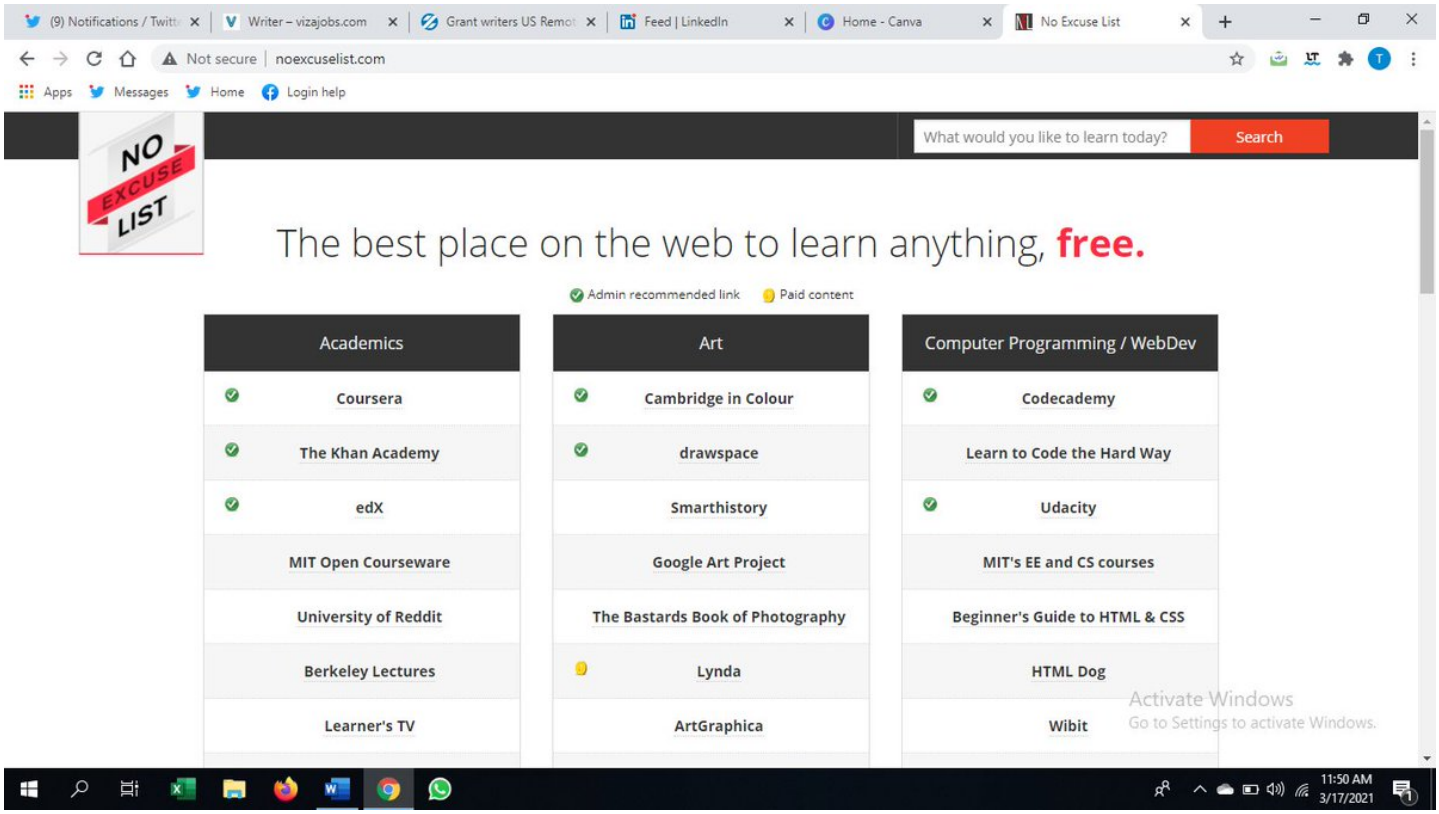

The first thing you should have is a VALUABLE SKILL. Yes, you write, but is your writing valuable? You do not have to be a pro-writer; you just have to be good at what you do. You could be a programmer, video-editor, proofreader,...

UI/UX designer, language translator, virtual assistant, tech bro. Whatever it is, someone somewhere is willing to pay for that skill. Always have that in mind.

So, what happens if you do not have a skill? Learn. There are hundreds of valuable skills you can learn.

Earlier in the month, one of my followers started a course to become a product designer. She was a food vendor but seeing as she was interested in earning with a digital skill, she started the course.

You can start yours today as well. There are thousands of relevant YouTube videos. You can also check out: https://t.co/dFSoQyc0n5. Good luck!

The second thing is to HAVE A PORTFOLIO and/or a RESUME ready. A portfolio is a repository of your works. You do not have to be an expert to have a portfolio, start now. I do not think anyone would want to hire someone without a proven track record of excellence.

Resumes are not only meant for people who work in offices. As a freelancer/remote worker, get yourself a resume, a good one too. And if you have to get a portfolio deck, do so to. How? Check out https://t.co/5exKDNMN1k, https://t.co/8vDDVRTOYy, https://t.co/goqZM8as2N.

Or just google “Portfolio creating sites”. All your works should be uploaded. Not only would you look organized to your recruiter, but you would also have a huge sense of confidence. If you still do not know how to create a portfolio, please let me know under this tweet...

I will work out a free class to help you start your journey. Everybody must win.

Important: Know what you field requires. A professional grant writer must be familiar with NGOs, and all. Some things are not escapable. You have to know them.

Third, WORK ON YOUR MINDSET. Ideally, this should not be the third point, but it is. Why? Because in your quest for a remote job that pays, you need to be positive irrespective of the troubling hurdles you may come across. Just last week...

...someone broke the news of how he got a job that pays $50 per day via LinkedIn. It was all sweet and rosy till he told me how many rejections he had gotten before then. You will always be rejected. But trust me, someone somewhere needs that skill, and with consistency, smart...

work, and prayers, you will reach out to them. Someone got a job that pays $1200 monthly after over 37 rejections. You have the skill; you have the platform. You only need positivity. Work on your mindset.

Uhm… short break. To read a more comprehensive version of this thread, please check out my LinkedIn post, follow me there too. PLEASE.
https://t.co/xCyFoyjpBv

Some of the sites you can apply on are:
-Flex.job.com
-Remotive.io
-Justremote.co
-Weworkremotely.com
-Indeed.com
-Jobspresso.com
-Wfh.io
-Dailyremote.com
-Angel.co

-Remoteleads.io
-Workingnomads.co
-https://t.co/koh8QvUBtv
-https://t.co/3UQofXzRWY

For those who are reading this for the first time, you do not have to take action today. Get everything you need first. Then start.

Ask ANY question you might have.