In this slokam, Swami Desikan talks about the [redacted] of the Divya Dampathi, i.e. unison of thought and actions. Bhagavan has taken a vow to protect those in distress, redacted2/n

Didn't You also vow to protect the Rakshasis even without their seeking your protection? Swami Desikan calls Sri Devi as [redacted], beloved companion. 3/n

You accompany Your Bhagavan in all His avataram with an appropriate form and assist Him to perform His duties of protection ([redacted]). 4/n

Just like the waves of [redacted] travel a long distance to reach the shores and still retain all their sweetness, You and Your Bhagavan leave Sri Vaikuntam and descend on this earth in Your avataram with the sweetness of all Your Kalyana Gunas intact. 5/n

Bhagavad Ramanuja has beautifully explained this in his Sharangathi Gadyam ([redacted]). 6/n

You are the abode of all auspiciousness, the destroyer of the ills of samsara and sorrows, the granter of all boons, the refuge of erring chethanas and You share these qualities with Your Bhagavan and hence You are united in thought and actions with Him. 7/n

O Sri Devi, You are the only refuge for chethanas suffering in this samsara. Through Your [redacted] You quench the sorrows and heat of samsaric sufferings([redacted]). 8/8
