Twitter Thread by Blake Emal ■

I analyzed 100s of landing pages to give you some inspiration.

Here are 34 of the very best:

Website:

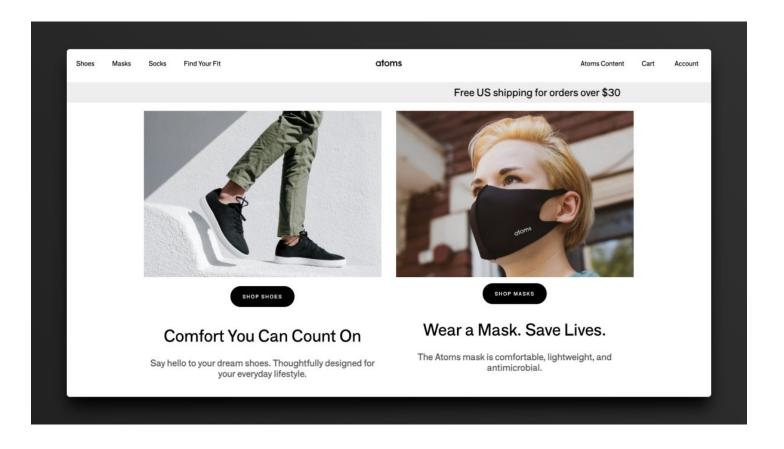

@WearAtoms

1 Great Feature:

Gives us options, but not too many options.

1 Opportunity:

Reduce the speed of the rotating banner.

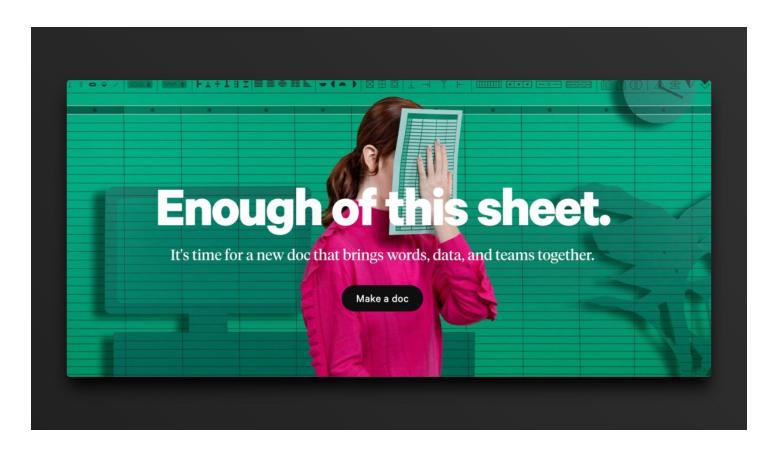

@coda_hq

1 Great Feature:

Great copy that informs and relates all at once.

1 Opportunity:

The colors may be a bit too much here. Needs greater contrast of elements.

Website:

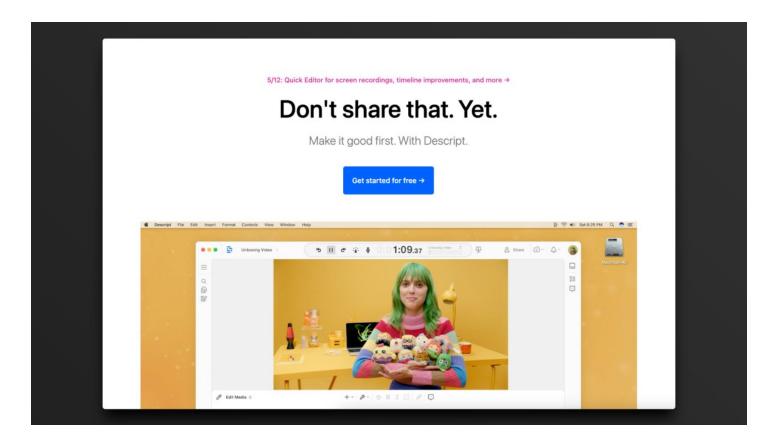

@DescriptApp

1 Great Feature:

Eyes point straight to the button on this page.

1 Opportunity:

Needs social proof above the fold.

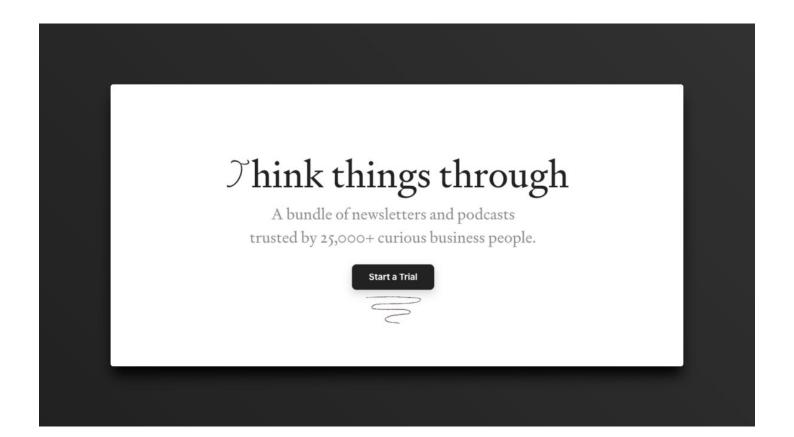

@every

1 Great Feature:

Adds a micro-delight under the button to accentuate the call to action.

1 Opportunity:

Show us the newsletter on a device.

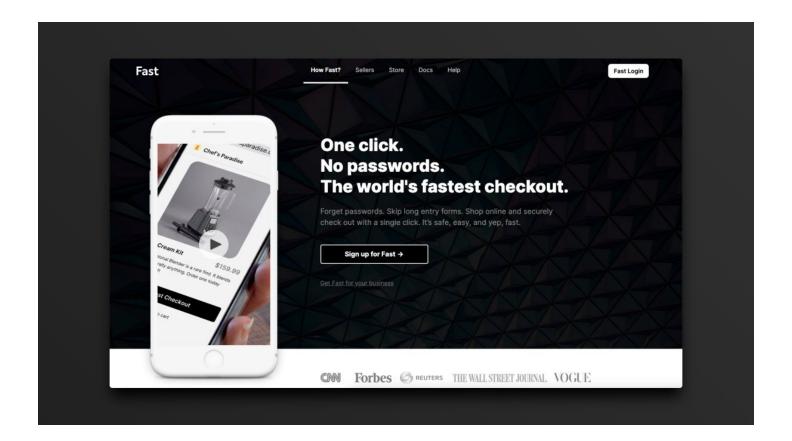

@fast

1 Great Feature:

Shows the product in action instantly.

1 Opportunity:

Update the iPhone mockup to a newer model.

Website:

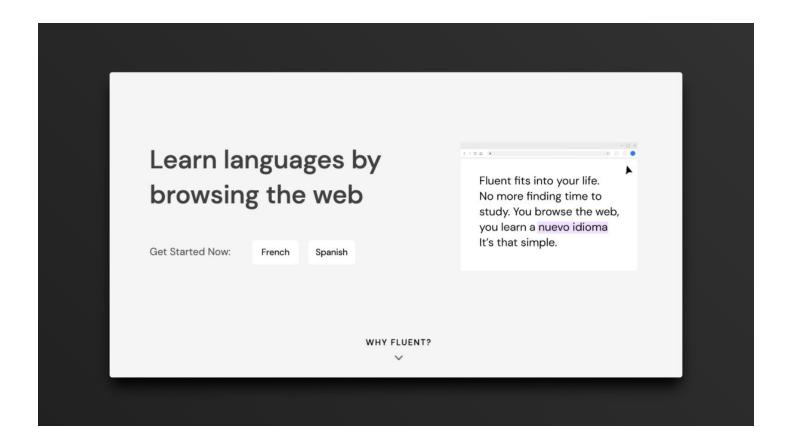

@useFluent

1 Great Feature:

Gives a demo on page with no effort required.

1 Opportunity:

Could use some empty space at the bottom for social proof.

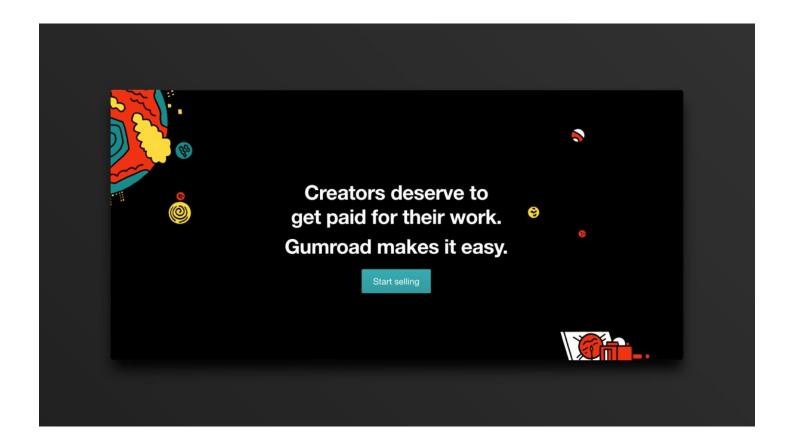

@gumroad

1 Great Feature:

Best CTA copy on the internet.

1 Opportunity:

If the focus is on creators, let's show them right off the bat.

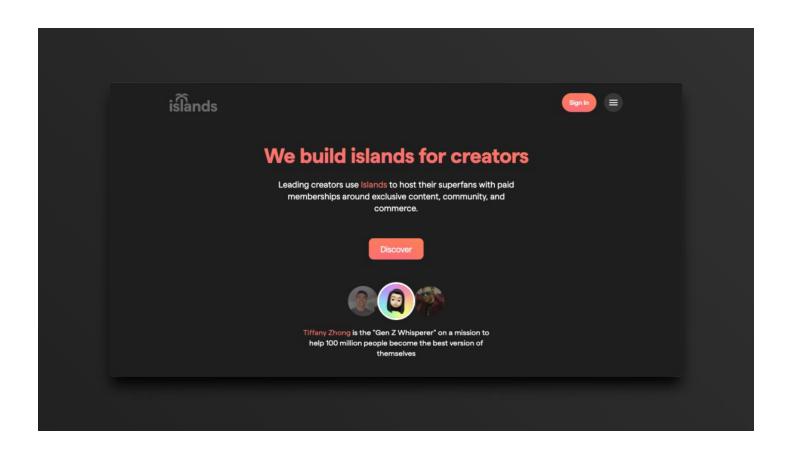

@TZhongg

1 Great Feature:

A little context goes a long way here. Highly focused.

1 Opportunity:

Change the main CTA from Discover to Sign Up.

Website:

@jamesclear

1 Great Feature:

Ultimate lead magnet: an entire chapter of a book.

1 Opportunity:

CTA button is too far down the page and could be moved up.

@julian

- 1 Great Feature:
- 4 high-quality options to choose from. Nothing more, nothing less.
- 1 Opportunity:

Test moving the subscribe box above the content boxes.

