

Twitter Thread by sriram ■■■

sriram ■■■

@SriramKannan77

We've arrived at the world of social media. We have complete freedom to say whatever we want. Few people may like it, and even fewer may despise it. It is not required that everyone will enjoy our articles.

We can't make them do anything. It is true that people want to be flattered rather than wounded.

I've never figured out how to be flattering. I've always said whatever came to mind. In this, I did not retain any diplomacy.

I didn't learn this, but I never anticipated members of this so-called elite club to act so childishly that they couldn't digest any criticism, let alone a negative comment on their articles.

ONLY ILLITERATES WHO REFUSE TO LEARN, UNLEARN, AND RELEARN ARE ILLITERATES IN THIS CENTURY.