n/1

1. Truth

The first law of Shiva Karma is the truth. This law asks the followers to follow the path of truth, justice, and being true to themselves and those who are around. Remember that dishonesty and false deeds may prevail in small battles, but the truth always wins the war.

2. Knowledge is God.

A single person cannot possess the knowledge of everything, but everyone may possess the knowledge of something. We should find that seed of knowledge within us, and then do all our karma around it.

3. Everything is an illusion.

No matter what life you're living, at what place you are; if your happiness depends on the materialistic things you own, then happiness is an illusion for you, and it'll be gone with that thing.

The third law of Shiva Karma asks believers not to attach their happiness to earthly things.

4. Beyond happiness.

The world we're living in is growing more self-obsessed. Everyone is worried about their happiness and doesn't care if people around them are happy or not. However, real happiness is beyond limits,

5. Be formless.

If you may have noticed a happy person around you, you'll see that the illusion does not control them. You put them in any situation at any place; they'll be the same calm and content in their mind.

So, the fifth and one of the most fundamental laws of Shiva Karma is practicing to be formless like water.

6. Using all your senses.

When our mind is at peace with heart, and we walk on the path of self-realization, all our senses come together to work in proper synchronization. When you achieve this state in your physical form, the feeling you get is incomparable.
