Twitter Thread by Dan Price

Dan Price
@DanPriceSeattle

Dick's burgers in Seattle just upped its minimum wage to $19. It gives workers free health care, 3 weeks paid vacation, 50% 401(k) match and $9,000 for tuition/childcare.

Its basic burger costs $1.80.

But I was told that paying people a living wage would make burgers cost $20?

"Our jobs are challenging and physically demanding. I know from personal experience how had our employees work every day."

Letters like this from business leaders should be the norm.
https://t.co/gUwsdpIGms

> A Letter from the President of @DicksDriveIns Jasmine Donovan - as of today starting wages have increased to $19 an hour at all locations and $20 an hour starting wage at our Broadway and Queen Anne Locations. Apply now at https://t.co/J5AGL9rQ98 #NowHiring pic.twitter.com/nRxvPICxQ9
>
> — Dick's Drive-Ins (@DicksDriveIns) September 22, 2021