A Day in the Life of a Trader (A day in my Life)

1) I absolutely love my work! In fact, I grew up dreaming to be a trader. So trading, to me, doesn't feel like working (except when I lose).

It's fascinating because it's different every day. #trading #life pic.twitter.com/ih9lejMKEr

IRCTC - Must Thread of my analysis.

People think that IRCTC crash because GOVT. expect convenience fee from IRCTC. But, reality is that why anyone bought IRCTC at a valuation of more than 400PE. That's a clear euphoria.

Let's get some more details.

■ Nifty or Bank Nifty for option selling?

Here he talks about how being open to trading in both of them can increase opportunities for traders.

Nifty or Banknifty for option selling?

There are times when i have traded exclusively in bnf for atleast a couple of yrs, when the weeklies got introduced.

Stopped trading in it for an yr when nf weekly got introduced & bnf started having price freeze issues on expiry days.

Thread: Pivot levels

Trading based on Pivot levels is one of the popular approaches. Both short-term and intraday traders track Pivot levels to identify support and resistance levels in any instrument.

Let's discuss how these levels are calculated. pic.twitter.com/IUSwQuNCDQ

Many messages from first time investors of this cycle over the last few days on why the market is correcting.

Only response: this is the normal of equity investing. What you have experienced till recently was the exception!
