Twitter Thread by Slav

Slav
@TrustworthySlav

There was an entire summer of riots carried out with the full support of the democrat party and international capital and people who spent that time tucked away in their homes poasting can only interpret doing something about it as murderous intent. LMFAO. //

"akshually the issue is that Kyle wasn't clever enough to spot that he was participating in the spectacle. Akshually the issue is that he didn't have an intellectualized concept of private property. akshually i cant comprehend anyone would ever use guns for community protection."

This is kind of unreal to me. If someone wanted to have a semi high-minded take on this that didn't "take the bait" maybe it would be something to the effect of if police simply allow rioters to burn down buildings shit like this happens.

If it was your fucking business about to be burned to the ground I doubt you would be on here insisting that "akshually no it has nothing to do with making sure the community you work in isnt decimated".

if middle American towns are gutted and raped by international capital then we can bemoan it for heckin online populism points, but if some fucking blue hairs and DMV creatures do it at the behest of those forces then we jump to eviscerate anyone doing something about it.

It's a tragic situation and I would not let my child go to something like that, but it's genuinely sad to hear ppl INCAPABLE of understanding that showing up to say "NO FUCKING MORE" to shit like this is LITERALLY A DESIRABLE FUCKING TRAIT IN A CITIZEN.

The second people start ruining people's lives because of those stupid astroturf civil rights politics is the second it STOPS being "muh culture war BS".

And making fun of some kid sobbing on the stand as he is being put on trial for murder after an entire cabal of giants in the media made hay drumming up a lynch mob for him and declaring him a murderer? Genuinely take a step back. Not good, man.

The ones bitching about Rittenhouse being manipulated and cucked by some modern hall of mirrors into doing some stupid shit are not entirely wrong, but they miss that no one is deeper in that hall of mirrors than they are. the guy with skin in the game understands retaliation.

Using an AR-15 to protect your community against people attempting to destroy it is one of the things it is intended to do- not just to sit on some rack in your mancave like a smokeshop katana. You either acknowledge that that is a part of American ethos or you don't.

but you don't get to act like there was nothing but murderous intent going through his head. To say nothing of the actual specifics which overwhelmingly speak for itself. Social workers and clipboards and lil trash picking claws arent the tools for a fucking riot.

It's really sad that propaganda got those rioters to do what they did. It's really sad that people's lives were ruined when their businesses were burned down and in a lot of cases their loved ones were killed. And it's really sad that Rittenhouse ended up shooting those people.