Ghoonghat continues to limit women's autonomy in Haryana

By Poorvi Gupta | September 3, 2021

The ghoonghat continues to bar women, especially in the Hindi-speaking rural belt of the country, from making progress.

ONE INDIA WHERE HINDU WOMEN DOING GHOONGHAT IS REGRESSIVE AND LIMITS HER AUTONOMY

THIS STORY IS FROM March 07, 2017

My life. My body. My choice. My hijab is noneof your business

No other article of women's clothing has courted as much controversy as the hijab has in the recent past. While some term it 'regressive', others say it is a symbol of 'oppression'. Strangely enough, no one seems to think it's important that women are the ones who should have the final word on it. Hyderabad Times finds out what they have to say.

What you think determines how progressive you are, not what you wear

I don't wear the hijab because I am more comfortable without it. but if I decide to wear one tomorrow, I'd have no qualms. At international tournaments, I meet girls from Muslim nations who cover their heads, hands and legs and compete just like the rest of us. Meanwhile, I've been criticised for not wearing a hijab. It's illogical. progressiveness or backwardness have nothing to do with what you choose to wear. I know a lot of girls who don't wear the hijab but are still backward in their
