Whatever action you take, it is motivated by a want and your comprehension of that goal.

Krishna did not amend Arjuna's action when he did not lift the bow. Krishna clarifies his point of view.

Arjuna's heart swelled with passion with that realisation, and he picked up the bow.

This is quite useful in the workplace.

Never use spell check if you're mentoring someone. The focus should be on the process of thought.

You can get an MBA in the United States or anyplace else in the world, but all they teach you is how to spell check.

GITA is the best school to learn management.
