Hindu mob lynches Muslim rumoured to have killed a cow

Rupam Jain Nair

NEW DELHI (Reuters) - A Hindu mob killed a Muslim man in India over rumours that he butchered a cow, unleashing violence that police on Wednesday blamed on tension fuelled by politicians who seek strict protection of an animal many Hindus consider sacred.

Relatives of Mohammad Akhlaq mourn after he was killed by a mob on Monday night, at his residence in Dadri town, in Uttar Pradesh, September 29, 2015.

‘Please forgive us. Please let us go’: Muslims beg for their lives as Hindu mobs take revenge for railway slaughter

By Rajiv Chandrasekaran
March 3, 2002

This story was originally published in The Washington Post print edition on March 3, 2002.

Sardarpura, India — Carrying wooden sticks and plastic jugs of kerosene, the mob of 500 Hindus made no secret of its intentions as it swarmed into this tiny farming town late Friday night. “Kill the Muslims,” they chanted. “Kill the Muslims.”
