

Twitter Thread by V■■■■■■■

V■■■■■■■
@V_Shuddhi

The first ever world map was sketched thousands of years ago by Indian saint “Ramanujacharya” who simply translated the following verse from Mahabharat and gave the world its real face

In Mahabharat,it is described how 'Maharishi Ved Vyasa' gave away his divine vision to Sanjay

First Ever World Map Was Sketched Out Based On This Mahabharat Verse !

The First Ever World Map Was Sketched Thousands Of Years Ago By Indian Saint Ramanujacharya, Who Simply Translated The Following Verse From Mahabharat And Gave The World Its Real Face. 700

Dhritarashtra's charioteer so that he could describe him the events of the upcoming war.

But, even before questions of war could begin, Dhritarashtra asked him to describe how the world looks like from space.

This is how he described the face of the world:

Meaning: "Just like a man sees his face in the mirror, so does the Earth appears in the Universe. In the first part you see leaves of the Peepal Tree, and in the next part you see a Rabbit."

Based on this shloka, Saint Ramanujacharya sketched out the map, but the world laughed it off on seeing some leaves and a rabbit. Much later, when the picture was switched upside down, the reality struck in.