Web3 is loaded with non-tech career opportunities.

But you must take the right steps.

Here's how to get a career in web3:

Learn the Fundamentals

Start with the key terms.

Study—till you understand them inside and out.

Here's a list of 50+ terms you need to know:

Web3 lingo is confusing.

This list of 50+ terms will get you up to speed (fast):

Make use of YouTube

There are excellent channels where you can find simplified explanations of all aspects of web3.

Try Whiteboard Crypto, Simplilearn, and Daap University.

Go deeper with the best resources.

My favorites are the Crypto, NFT and DAO canons by @smc90 @cdixon and the team @a16z.

Here's the OG Crypto Canon:

Understand how the blockchain actually works.

A top-notch resource is the Foundations of Blockchains Lecture Series by Columbia professor @Tim_Roughgarden.

Keep learning with the right podcasts.

The best and latest web3 convos come from podcasts like @nftnow, @_trwih, @meansofcreation, and @BanklessHQ.

Here's a thread with the top web3 podcasts:

Podcasts are a free web3 university.

But only if you know the right ones.

Here are 20 podcasts to make you SUPER SMART for free:

Use Twitter the Right Way

Your Twitter activity is your web3 resume.

Do it right and you will get job and partnership offers in your DMs.

But you must be strategic.

Follow the thought leaders like @cdixon, @ljin18, @alexisohanian

Engage with their tweets.

Ask smart questions. Be a positive force.

Here's the must-follow 100 ■

Twitter is the smartest place to learn web3.

But 99% don't follow the right people.

Here are 100 web3 leaders you MUST follow:

Focus on adding value.

Share quality content that helps people learn something useful about web3.

To do that you must ■

Become an Expert

With new developments, almost daily, everyone is always scrambling to keep up.

Pick a lane and become the go-to expert that people can rely on for the latest info.

There are numerous lanes to pick from:

DAOs, DeFi, DeSo, DeSci, Art NFTs, Music NFTs, Event NFTs, Tokenomics, Community Building, Gaming, The Metaverse, Security

And many more.

Study everything you can find on your area of choice:

Whitepapers, blog posts, tweets, podcasts, YouTube.

Next - tweet about your chosen topic.

Be consistent, and you will become a trusted source of quality content.

The partnership and job offers will follow.

Join a Web3 Community

In web3, community is the product.

And the they are the new way to go from mailroom to boardroom.

Pick the right community:

Checkout the leadership on Twitter.

Hop onto their Discord and check out the vibe.

Do they have a real mission?

Are their values aligned with yours?

Are they welcoming and supportive to newcomers?

Once you've picked one or two communities:

Engage. Contribute. Add real value. Be a positive force.

You will be noticed.

In the right Discord, you will make friends, find business partners, get job offers and more.

Some of my favorites are: @mybff @IslandsXYZ @_trwih @worldofwomennft

Here are links to some quality Discords:

There are more than 20 Million active Discord servers.

Few will improve your life.

Here are 7 that can make you a WINNER:

As you can see, there are tons of non-tech web3 jobs available.

Again, the hiring process is very informal.

Here's what it might look like:

<https://t.co/XIJ6xizW3l>

Hiring in web3 vs hiring in web2 \U0001f4bc

Web2: job board, email, cv, personality test, 3 interviews, assignment, formal, several weeks.

Web3: dm Twitter, chat on Telegram, share Github, video call, informal, 1 week.
