Here's an inside glean into company culture at TFL from my interview with Hyungsuk Kang, an ex-TFL employee who left in 2020. "Do Kwon is a disgrace to the blockchain industry. I tried to stop him from initiating these despicable schemes, but nobody else stood up to him." (1/4)

"Do was TFL and TFL was Do. I tried to make people listen, but they were blinded by greed. They told me - 'if you obey him blindly, you will be greatly rewarded.' This disgusted me to the core. I had to leave - I couldn't do it. I had to do what was right." (2/4)

"People of Do's type and nature are brimming with conceit. They think they're royalty. These people are truly worse than the North Koreans - their ego and lack of accountability is boundless. The company culture was abhorrent on multiple levels. They belong in Hell." (3/4)

Hyungsuk Kang is currently working with Korean prosecutors to provide evidence and testimony to help their case against TFL and the damage they have done to Korean society. I have been invited to assist with these efforts and hope to work hand-in-hand with them soon. (4/4)
