Twitter Thread by Bjørn Irønsights

Bjørn Irønsights
@lordstrongskull

We're like a month away from swathes of fake job laptop class being laid off with no recourse towards their previous lives

That'll actually probably be the catalyst for the Spicy Times

What happens when a few million laptop Americans get their pay cut down by 75%

> pic.twitter.com/EMMkS0dYgC
>
> — cold \U0001f951 (@coldhealing) June 4, 2022

When these layoffs start you can't just go get a job at another company because it'll be across the board

What happens when the 200,000 a year person with 200,000 in expenses has to go get a normal $40k a year job

And I would stress that as much as you may want to enjoy this you need to understand how interconnected it all is

Because as laptop consoomer class falls all that excess money will stop flowing into the blue collar sphere

Like we understand inflation in this abstract sense as a concept but I feel like people forget to process how it practically enters the economy

It's via these kinds of jobs

There's millions of these fake jobs making absurd salaries

They inturn spend ridiculous money on Amazon and door dash and other bugman services

This inturn supports those businesses which provides money to their employees

Amazon pays warehouse workers $19/hr because Becky and Lauren are spending insane amounts of money on Amazon x 1,000,000

These Amazon workers now go and buy cars, patronize restaurants, buy excess items as grocery stores ect

This let's McDonald's, Walmart, et al lay their ppl

So now these brands are paying $15/hr to stock shelves and run a register

But their bottom line demands balance on profit margin so they bump their prices up

But it works because it's all trickling down from the top keeping these bloated system running

What happens when Becky gets laid off x1,000,00

Well she stops buying in Amazon

So the $19/hr Amazon employee gets laid off and he stops shopping as much

This reduces Walmarts profit, but Walmart is where it stops because you can only automate so much at the consumer lever

Now Walmart who is already increasing prices to keep their PM% straight has to increase prices even more

But eventually the $15/hr people will be priced out too

Probably pretty quickly tbh

Now we have a huge problem

Mind you this is literally only a part of the equation because globally commodities are sky rocketing

So prices are gonna go up no matter what

What we currently have is this bubble that projects from the laptop class via their absurdly high but completely unnecessary salaries

We're insulated from all the shit right now because of inflation

Major companies can swing special pay and travel pay and what not to keep their bottom of the totem pole "essential" personnel showing up because of the excess cash provided by the laptop Americans

When this salary bubble pops the inflation effectively stops because it's the vector by which this excess money enters the economy

I'm betting we see basically immediate recession/depression

It'll then cascade because housing and auto markets will crash/pop as ppl can't pay

There's a reason they're suddenly pushing to make MASS SHOOTINGS a thing

They want one of two things

Either control (via gun confiscation)

Or more likely

Fear to create a demand for heavy handed governance

Violence is absolutely going to increase as things move forward

Joblessness + inflation + shortages + blackouts is gonna make the spicy level INSANE

By stoking the fires now when things start getting bad Becky and Lauren will be DEMANDING the government do something

We saw this with covid when people were demanding draconian bullshit to feel safe and normal

Dependent slave class people will happily trade freedom for security

Now we have a national gestapo to help prevent MASS SHOOTINGS

This is why I think a federal police force is more the idea

Gun confiscation would be infeasible and would also probably be Civil War

Federal police force to enforce curfews, enforce restrictions, ect would do two things

https://t.co/9Hz7MIyCH3

> given the sheer number of guns that would require a massive national police force. Who will pay for it ?
> Where will the men come from ?
> the ATF or even the army doesn't have the men to disarm the public
>
> — hereandthereandeverywhere (@hereandtherean1) June 5, 2022

First it would functionally keep A LOT of "dissidents" in line

The suicidal civility of your average Fox News conservative+ armed gestapo with a patriotic name will keep them quiet because MUH LAW AND ORDER

Secondly it would hinder any kind of revolt by door kicki

Secondly it would hinder any kind of revolt by door kicking citizens under the guise of safety

When kids are robbing ppl at gunpoint and murder becomes Mexico level avg people will be too stupid and afraid to understand why black bagging Todd the guy with 10 ARs isn't helpful

They'll arrest one "youth" a week while also taking in "terrorists" for "the greater good"

Once again Fox News "conservatives" will sit on their own guns feeling safe while slowly rotting away because the second amendment has become a shackle to keep people complacent

"sic semper tyrannis!"

Says the guy with a gun collection as the breadlines form and curfews are put in place

Because Americans are solipsistic dickheads who think unless it's happening directly to them it doesn't matter

This is the big issue with the obsession on PERSONAL liberty

You forget what they actually means and think unless a government goon is hassling you specifically it isn't infringement of freedom

Because you're a good little citizen and you'll do what they tell you

"not me!"

Yes you

You say back with the rest of us while they locked the country down during Covid and did FUCK ALL about it

It'll be no different when The Hangries start