Twitter Thread by Doctor-Baron 17cShyteposter, DDS

Doctor-Baron 17cShyteposter, DDS
@17cShyteposter

But we're not allowed democracy. When we voted in a guy who just wanted to reform the failing system—put up a wall, rebalance trade, try to reindustrialize—democracy called him Hitler

And still seems more interested in him to this day, than the guy who they replaced him with

> This is the right angle. The people saying, "I don't care about January 6 because of inflation," would have backed Hitler because who cares about democracy, he's going to bring order. https://t.co/l53pnlsun2
>
> — Robert Tracinski (@Tracinski) June 10, 2022

You know what, normal people want order. You can call it fascism, I guess it is if you're saying democracy rejects order

Normal people want normal lives. When your ideology denies them this, they don't just say "Well okay, if it's for democracy"

They become MORE "fascist"

When you reject all reform, and insist that normal people buy in to your boutique, frankly bizarre beliefs, that normal people are hurt by

And when they follow the democratic process to oppose this, by voting in someone they'd like to make things just a little more normal—

When your response is "He's a Russian agent, here's the proof we used every agent of the media and deep state to fabricate, we're impeaching him twice, and trying again now that he's out of office," a 1990s liberal is so toxic to democracy we have to ban him from all social media

Then sorry, you deserve fascism. You deserve to be afraid of the people. Because you've made the people's lives hell, and you've denied them any political process capable of undoing what you've done to them

Enjoy it. It's not going away. It's only going to get worse for you.