This thread is about the technical setups I use day in/out to trade the markets ■

1■Wedge break (WB)

2■Wedge break pullback (WBPB)

3■Breakout Retest short (BORS)

4■Breakout Retest Long (BORL)

5■Breakout 10ema PB (BO10PB)

6■Breakout 21ema PB (BO21PB)

That's my playbook ■

1■ Wedge break (WB)

Price forming an orderly pullback contained by a down trend line (DTL). You want to see low volume within that wedge formation, with small down swings ideally.

Buy:

- DTL breakout ideally on higher than avrg. volume, OR
- PIVOT breakout daily high, OR
- Intraday PIVOT breakout H1 high

Stop Loss:

- Low Of Day (LOD), OR
- Recent swing low

2 ■ Wedge break pullback (WBPB)

After the WB, you often have a retest of the DTL, we then find support and follow through on the upside.

Buy:

- PIVOT breakout ideally on higher than avrg. volume, OR
- PIVOT breakout daily high, OR
- Intraday PIVOT breakout H1 high

Stop Loss:

- Low Of Day (LOD), OR
- Recent swing low

3 Breakout Retest short (BORS)

After a base breakout, the BORS setup takes place when price comes back testing the BO pivot within a short period only.

Buy:

- PIVOT breakout ideally on higher than avrg. volume, OR
- PIVOT breakout daily high, OR
- Intraday PIVOT breakout H1 high

Stop Loss:

- Low Of Day (LOD), OR
- Recent swing low

4 Breakout Retest Long (BORL)

Sometimes we breakout with a lot of strength, but we pullback during a couple weeks back to the BO level in a wedge pattern.

You want to see low volume within that wedge formation, with small down swings ideally.

Buy:

- DTL breakout ideally on higher than avrg. volume, OR
- PIVOT breakout daily high, OR
- Intraday PIVOT breakout H1 high

Stop Loss:

- Low Of Day (LOD), OR
- Recent swing low

5 Breakout 10ema PB (BO10PB)

When the b/o is powerful & buying pressure is sustained, we don't always get a breakout level retest. In that case we might only get a pullback to the 10dma. You want to wait for that lower risk entry to form, specially if you missed the initial b/o
