10 free websites so useful they should come pre-bookmarked on every browser:

1. Quillbot

A free paraphrasing website (popular among students).

- Input text and hit Rephrase
- Get AI-inspiration on how to rewrite
- Scan text for plagiarism (built-in feature)
- Credit sources

2. 12ft Ladder

Want to read an article, but there's a paywall?

Simply insert the URL into 12ft Ladder.

All sites have a non-paywall version they send to Google for SEO.

12ft finds the cached, un-paywalled version of the page.

Now you're in.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with two tabs: 'What Skeptics Get Wrong About...' and '12ft Ladder'. The address bar shows the URL 'hbr.org/2022/07/what-skeptics-get-wrong-about-cryptos-volatility'. The page header includes the Harvard Business Review logo, the word 'Blockchain', the article title 'What Skeptics Get Wrong About Crypto's Volatility', a 'Subscribe' button, and a 'Sign In' link. Below the header, there is a 'Summary' section with a paragraph of text and a 'more' link. To the left of the main text is a social media sharing section with icons for Twitter, Facebook, LinkedIn, and a 'Save' button. The main text body begins with 'The past few months have been dark times for the crypto industry. Between April and June, Bitcoin's value more than halved, from just over $45,000 to around $20,000; other coins have fallen even more. The Terra-UST ecosystem, which paired a crypto coin with one designed to be pegged to the dollar, collapsed in May, wiping out $60 billion worth of value and leading to cascading failures among crypto lenders. Established companies like Coinbase, a popular crypto exchange, have announced layoffs.' On the right side, there is a 'Readers Also Viewed These Items' section featuring a book cover titled 'Results: Getting Beyond Politics to Get Important Work Done' and another book titled 'The Politics Industry'. A 'Buy Now' button is visible next to the first book.
