Over the past 3 years, I've read 30+ books on trading.

The truth is - majority of them added no value.

Shorten your learning curve by reading these 10 (and toss the rest in the trash):

1. How to Make Money in Stocks

Written by William O'Neil, How to Make Money in Stocks was first published in 1970 & has since become the bible for beginning investors.

Learning CANSLIM from the start of your career will help build habits that will change your life.

4. Reminiscences of a Stock Operator

Written by Edwin Lefèvre, Reminiscences is a make shift biography about the unique triumphs and pitfalls of the legendary trader Jesse Livermore.

This is my favorite trading book ever & is an amazingly easy read.

WILEY INVESTMENT CLASSICS

“The exquisite pleasure to be found in Lefèvre’s street-smart narration has been attracting stock market fans to Reminiscences through many a bull and bear market.”

Jack Schwager interviews 11 of the "best traders you've never heard of".

This book helped me realize that there are so many people with incredible track records of destroying the market year in and year out.
