The image is a dark-themed banner for Audioread. In the top left corner is the Audioread logo, which consists of a stylized 'A' made of two overlapping circles in blue and orange, followed by the text 'Audioread' and 'formerly Audioblog' in smaller text below it. In the top right corner, the text 'My Account' is displayed. The main body of the banner features the headline 'Turn your reads into podcasts' in a large, bold, sans-serif font, with 'Turn your reads' in light blue and 'into podcasts' in a slightly darker blue. Below the headline, the text 'Listen to any article, PDF, email, etc in your podcast app' is centered in a smaller, white font. At the bottom center, there is a prominent orange button with the text 'Try for Free' in white. Directly beneath this button, in a very small white font, is the text 'Starting at $1.99/mo'. On the far right edge of the banner, there is a small, vertical pink button with a white speech bubble icon and the word 'Feedback' written vertically.

Replying to @Bernadette

2/1 It's super clear about what data it collects and doesn't, and about how it works. This is not easy stuff to convey.

Your privacy is protected

Control how much data we use to track your location

It has no easy access to:

- ✗ Your location
- ✗ Your contact address
- ✗ Your phone contacts
- ✗ Your health information

Learn more about how it works

How it works

- ✓ The app uses Bluetooth to exchange location data with nearby phones
- ✓ Every day, it creates a list of random codes from people who opt into the app's location history
- ✓ If you're near someone who has opted in, you'll get a notification
