Working is holy. Building is the root of all that's Good. Creating something is your duty. It's the modern paradigm of 'work' that ruins the enthusiasm of Man. Having to be somewhere from X-Y. Ugly building. & Spirit knows the work doesn't matter.

THAT kind of work is torture but there's true laziness in society today.

People don't want to move any muscles, don't want to focus for longer than 2 minutes, don't want to sweat and chip away to piece things together

Regardless if you 'clock in' you should have ordained desire to work/build/make something

Give up safe 9-5 for risky 9-9 and life gets more busy but way better. We know why this is

Farmers are, by default, closer to God than accountants
