In 3 months I've gained:

- 5000+ followers
- Total location freedom
- A 4-figure coaching business

Here's how I'd do it in half the time:

1. Focus on time management

My father got fired in 2008.

In a single month, he built a fully functional communication agency.

No prior experience.

How?

- Creating tight deadlines
- Wasting no time in his routine
- Planning to-do's every Sunday

He understood this: ■

 Parkinson's law

/ˈpɑːkɪns(ə)nz ˈlɔː/

noun

the notion that work expands so as to fill the time available for its completion.

2. Start selling right away

Yeah, selling can be uncomfortable.

But there's something worse..

Selling too late.

Do this right away:

- Interview ~15 people
- Find out their obstacles
- Figure out how to solve it
- Coach 3-5 people for free
- Use testimonials to monetize

3. Go all-in on networking

"Your network is your net worth."

A bit cliché -- but it's true:

- Befriend a large account
- Get a lucky RT on a thread
- Exposure to 10.000s of people

Imagine you put your offer in there.

That's $1000s of free marketing.

All word of mouth.

4. Diversify your threads

Up to this point -- I've pretty much only posted in-depth tutorial threads.

Like this one.

They build authority, but lack reach.

This content plan solves that: ■

- Tuesdays: Personal stories
- Thursdays: Resource lists

- Saturdays: Big how-to's

5: Invest more in newsletters

Newsletters are underrated as fuck.

They're great at building deeper relations with your audience.

This is how you get more sign-ups:

- Use a landing page w/ testimonials
- Offer a freebie for signing up
- Tease it a day before sending

6: Repurpose high-performing ideas

Twitter is great because it gives you access to instant feedback.

But you have to actually use it:

- Make a Notion idea bank
- Sort them using engagement %
- Repurpose high-performing ideas

Remove the guesswork: ■

This all comes down to two things:

- 1) Maximising your reach
- 2) Marketing your offer

And in reality, this can be quite tough.

But by following all the guidelines I shared with you in this thread..

I'm sure you'll do a pretty good job ■

You've got this!

TLDR:

1. Focus on time management
2. Start selling right away
3. Go all-in on networking
4. Diversify your threads
5. Invest more in newsletters
6. Repurpose high-performing ideas

I'm so glad you made it this far.

To me, it means you found it useful.
