#4 the modern Deep State. Felix Warburg and to be honest doesn't he look like super mario? Connections to Sweden through family and still not in control of any telecom structure. That control is located in Sweden.

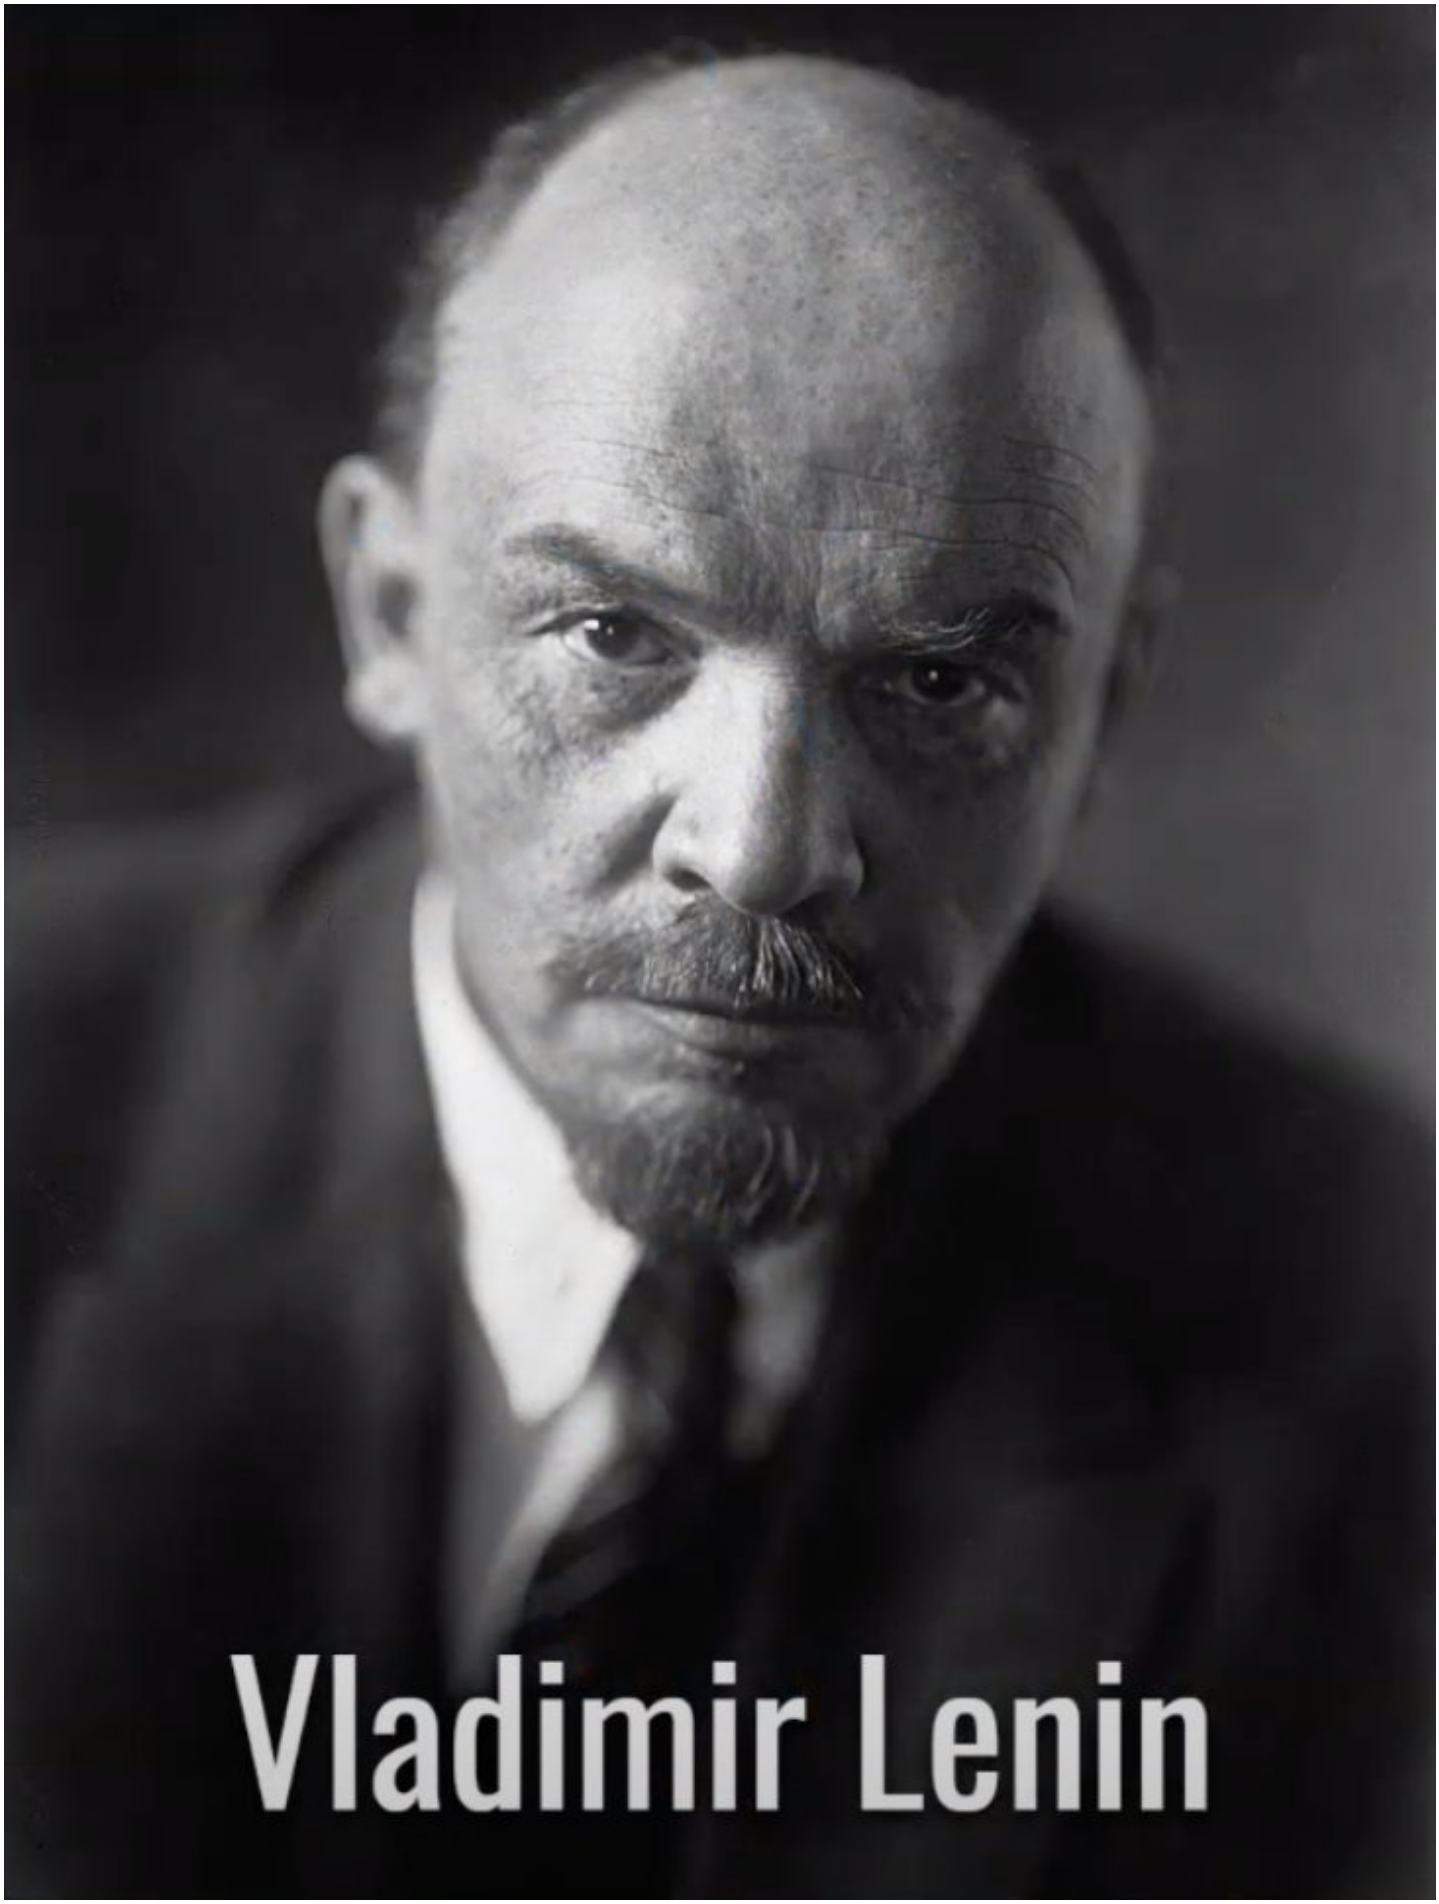

Bank Dynasty MM Warburg. What were they doing? How about being a part of the creation of the Federal Reserve? Partner in Kuhn Loeb & co and connections to Sweden, but of course he did not know anyone at all in his family.

Theodoer Rosewelt, President, good friend of Jacob Shiff. Won the Nobel Peace Prize for Mediation in the Russian-Japanese War. But he didn't know anyone not even his friend...

Vladimir Lenin Now we have to go back to the Palme and Palmedutt families who are highly involved in laying the foundations for Socialism in the world. Lenin's connections to Sweden are not insignificant.

Communist revolutionary, leader of the Bolshevik Party, the Communists were funded, trained and given equipment by someone. Lenin's story is short but he managed to do a lot. The Central Bank Committee was formed in 1921, of course, Lenin was not allowed to participate.

The control of money was too important to let politicians take care of. Lenin had a heart attack in 1922, After that it was really Stalin in charge and he was a little bit more hard to handle for the group of people in the top.

Stalin was just a little bit "schizophrenic" and suspected infiltrators and that someone was tapping the phones. Where did he get that idea from? The Tsar's gold and ebony phone and how did it go for him? We may need to find out who controlled the telephone lines...

In the Western media, Stalin was portrayed as an evil devil, which is of course correct, but if you see the story behind the emergence of the Deep State, you also understand that Stalin was important to be intimidated with to get an enemy after the war so the Cold War could start

Stalin was described as the enemy that spread communism, but you can think of families like Palme and the Swedish right-wing parties that financed revolutions and that Henry Ford was actually part of building industries in the world, for example in the Soviet Union...

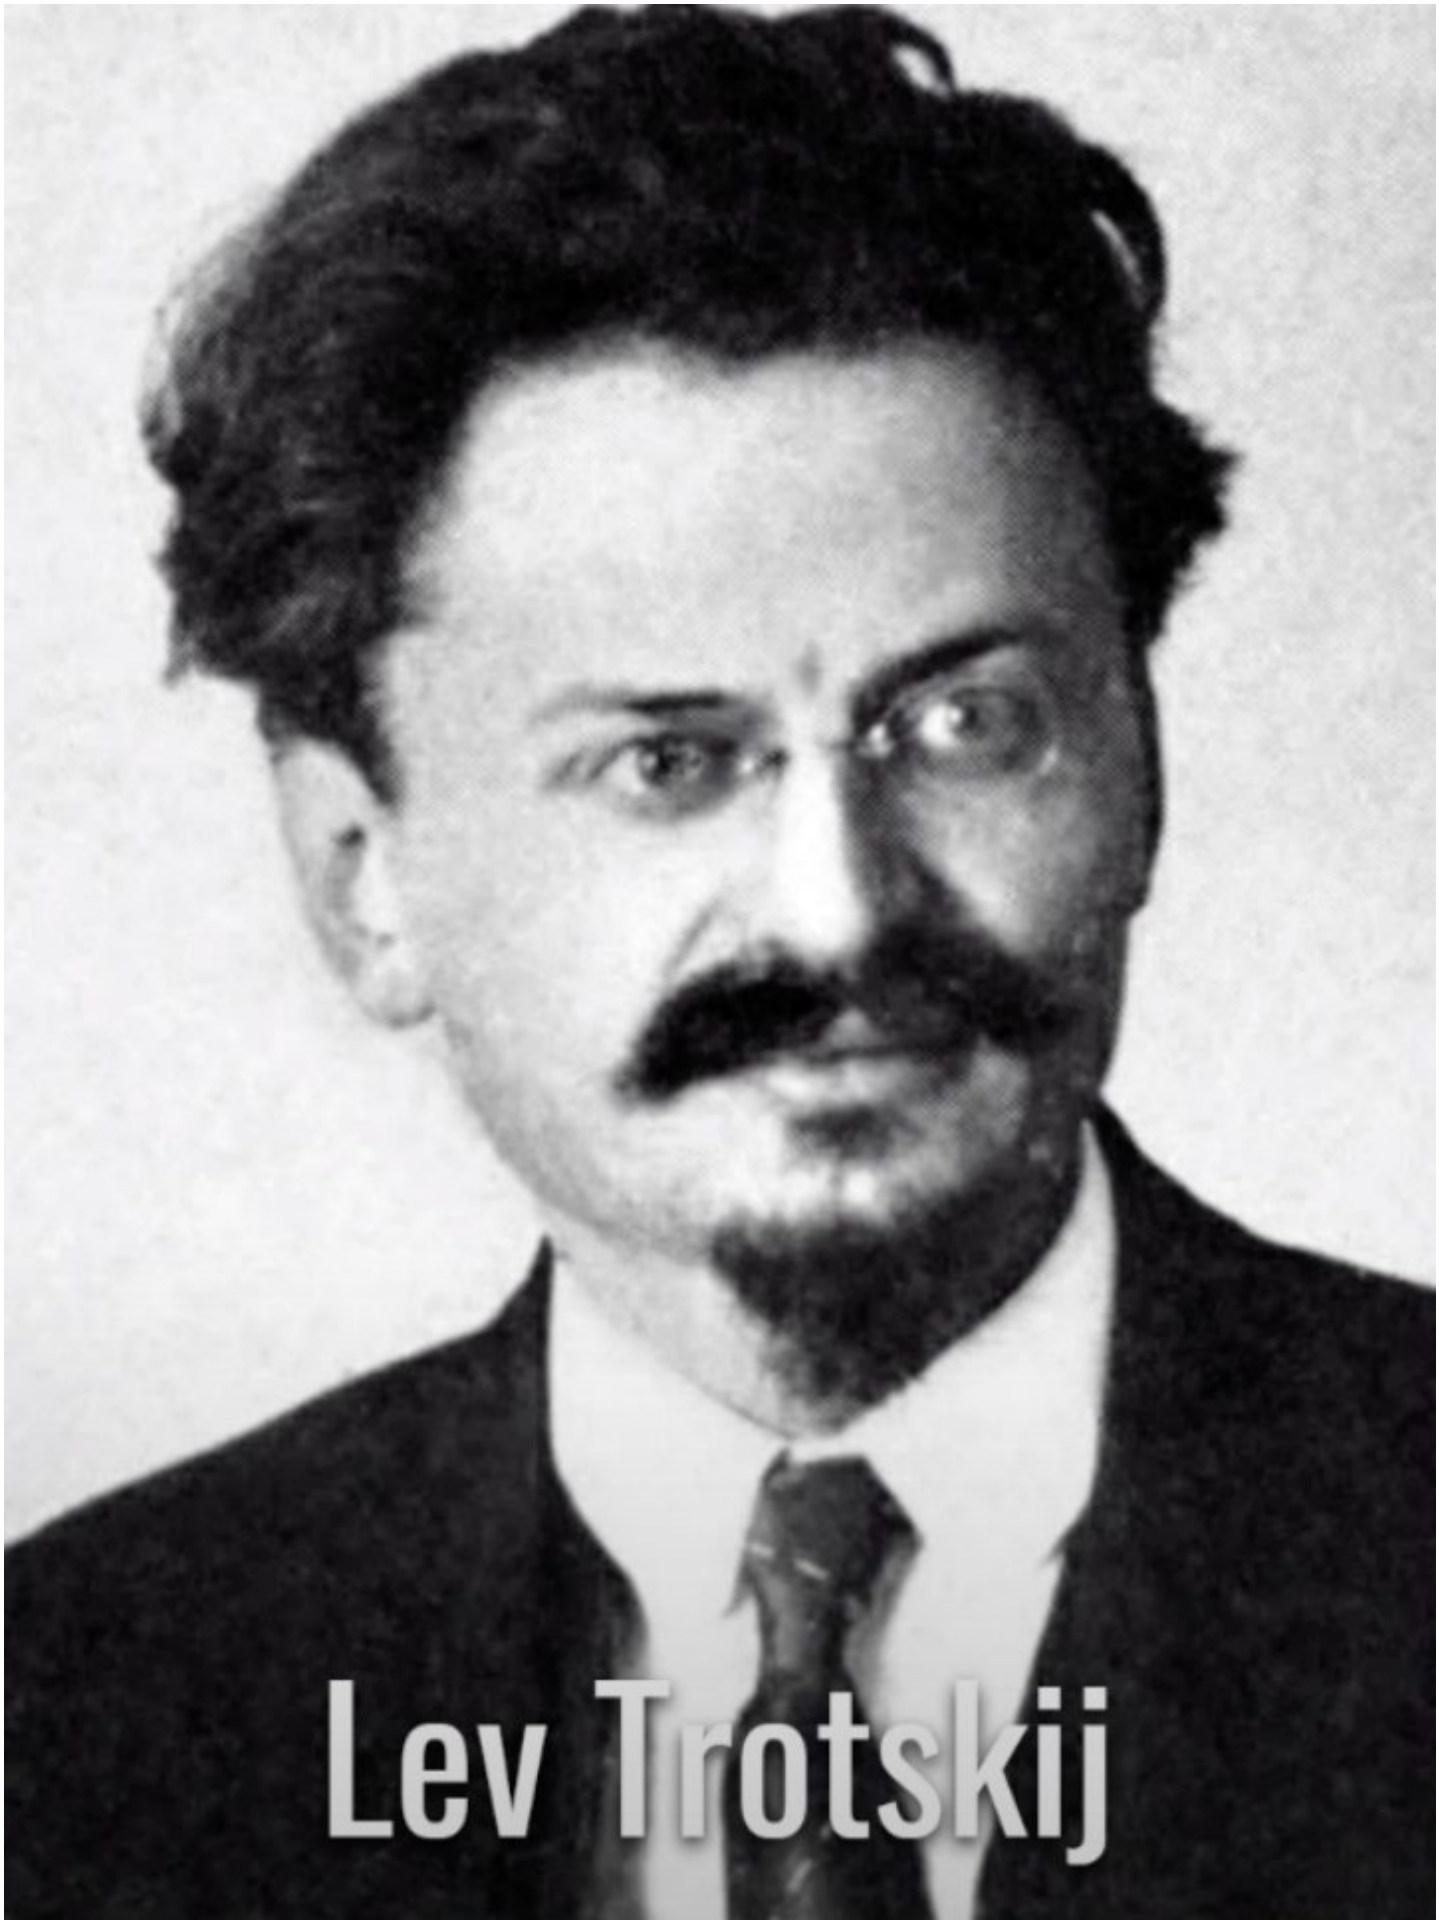

...Henry Ford was also part of the American IG Farben, but we will return to that branch of the DS tree later.
The Swedish Wallenberg family had strong connections to the same branch in US and was also a major shareholder in the European branch of IG. If you search for...

... Bosh affair, a large part of the involvement will become apparent. Even in the state public investigations SOU 1999: 20 you will still find this and it is clear no doubt whether they were involved or not.

We're going back to Lenin. After the failed coup attempt in 1905, he fled to Switzerland. At the same time in the USA, drama was staged, a stock market crash that provided a lever for "safe" money creation .
The "secure monetary system" would be guaranteed through the ...

...establishment of a central bank. The creation of the Fed ppl know a lot about so we leave it at the moment.. But some ppl benefitted more than the ppl of the world we can say without lying.

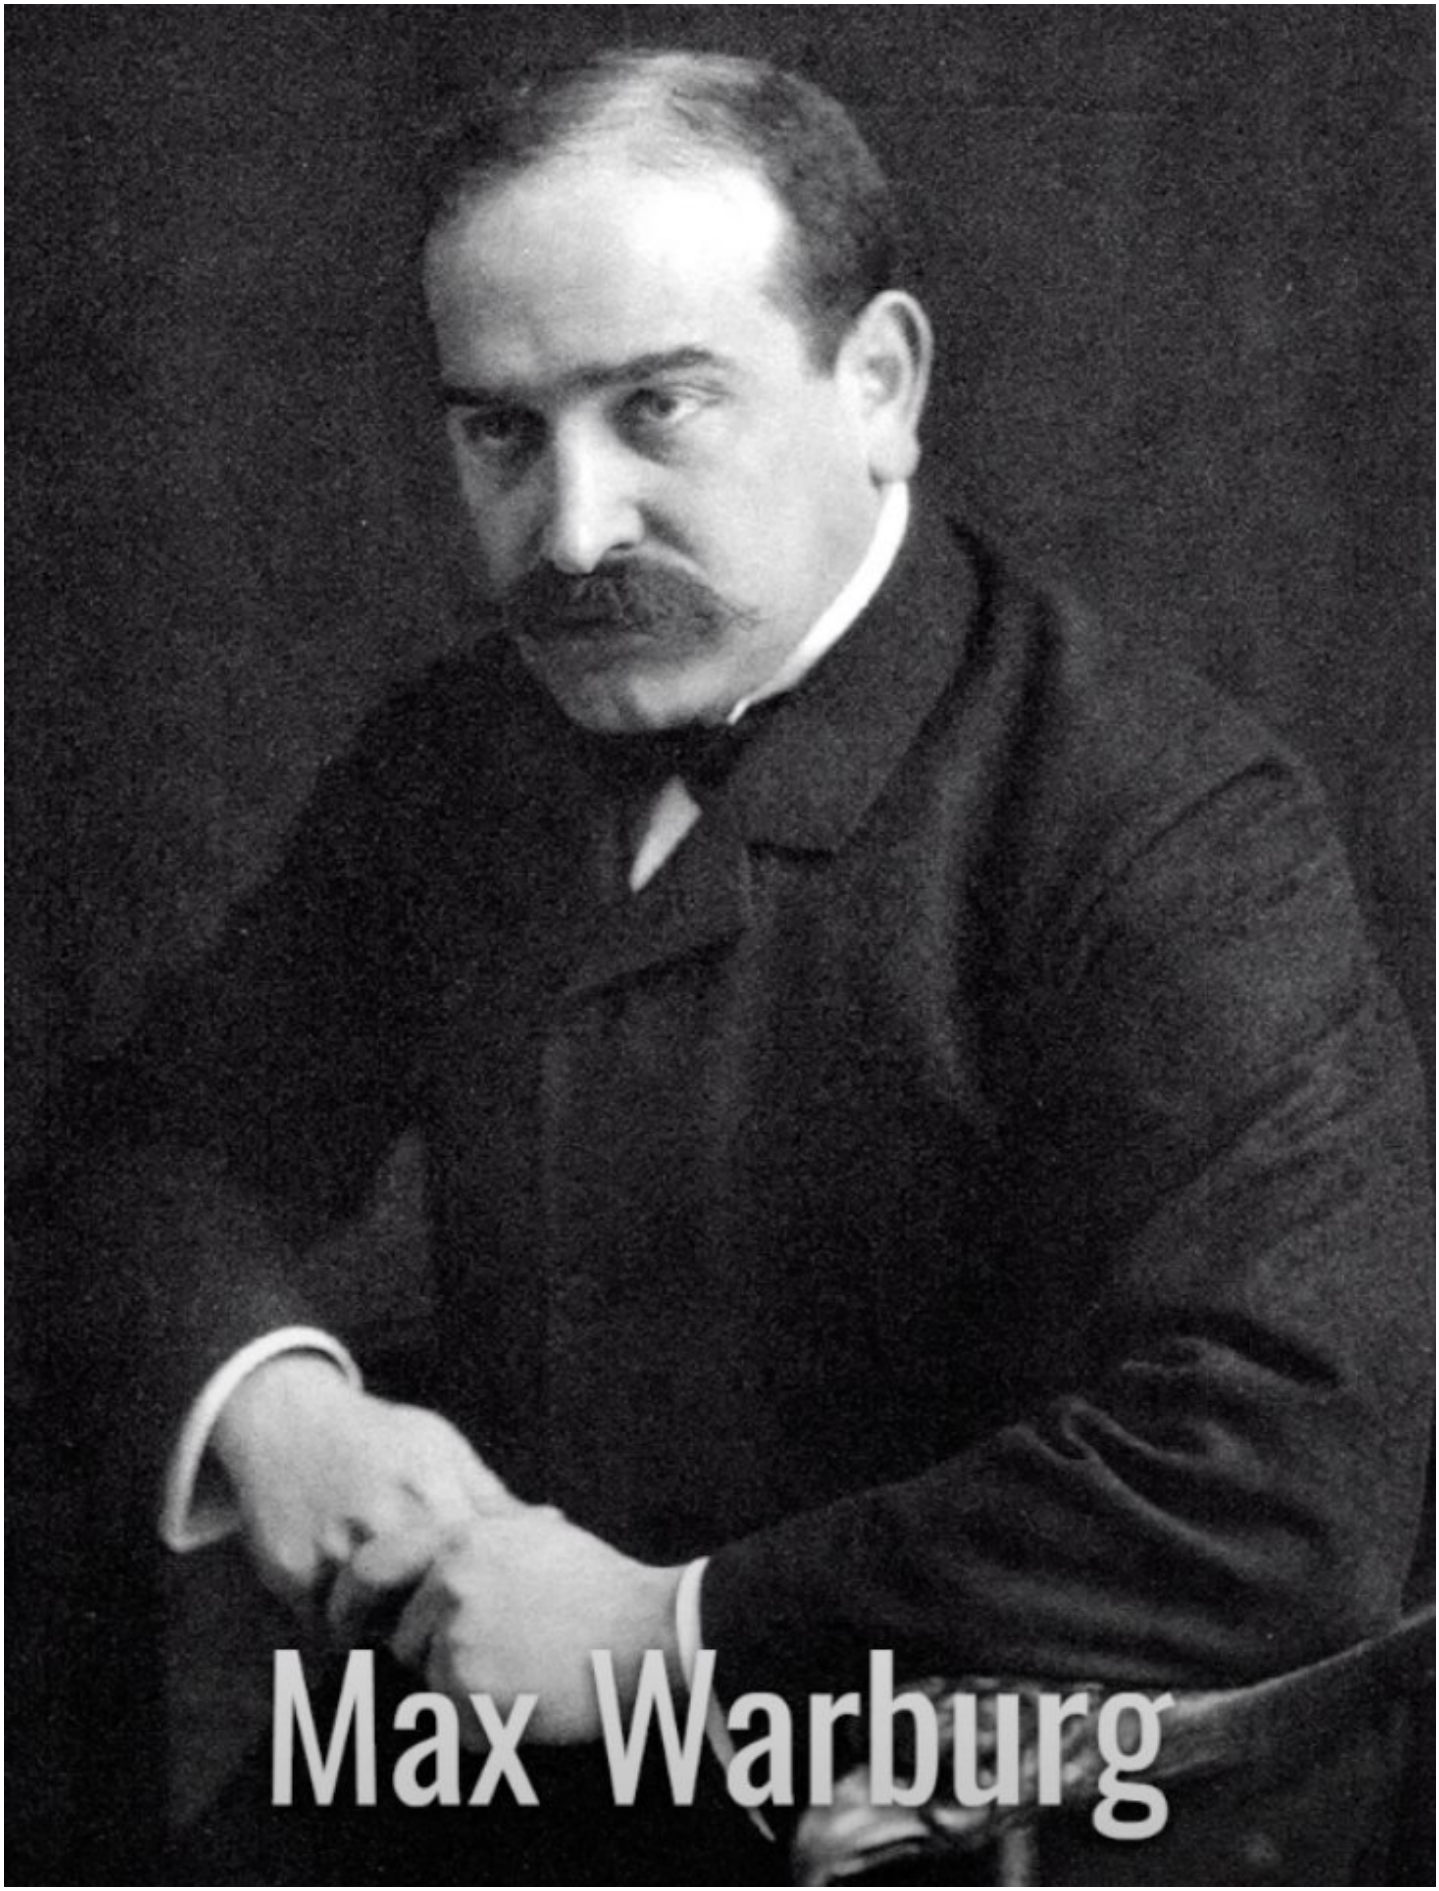

Lev Troskij ,leader of the first Russian revolution. Fled to the United States and was recruited by Jacob Shiff. Educated on Rockefeller's property in guerrilla warfare.
There is also information that he received training from Shiff.

1917 - the second attempt. If anyone does not understand why Putin did not congratulate Joe Biden, then probably everyone will understand this at the end of this thread. Lenins journey to revolution went through Sweden.

Max Warburg Chairman of Warburg bank MM. Intelligence officer during WW1. (Intelligence services without control of telecom infrastructure may simply engage in "hunting pigeons with nets" in order not to be detected) Warburg opened for Lenin's journey through Europe...

... from Zurich. Since Warburg, as usual, did not know anyone in Sweden, especially not his family, we can politely wonder how Lenin ended up in Sweden ... maybe it was still the case that Warburg knew someone in this cold country?

Lenin ended up in Sweden and stayed in Stockholm where he received a new handsome outfit from the department store PUB and also a sum of money from the right-wing leader Lindman. The same Lindman who sat in the Riksdag together with other famous names such as Warburg, ...

... Wallenberg etc but they didn't know each other?
Now everyone should start thinking about why the right, the so-called conservatives have a burning interest in financing the Bolshevik revolution ... something smells really bad here .

Claud Dansey.
We fill up with people of a slightly more odd character.
There is a core squad of people about 10. Dansey was recruited by MI15 in the border and intelligence service.
We need to add that Sweden has withheld a lot because a government decision was never ...

...taken on the founding of our secret police, so Sweden could operate without being seen and this is a little bit of our MO through out the history.

During the years 1932 -33, Sweden had over 1000 interception stations in Sweden. Most Swedes can not even name 100

Swedish...

... places, but we had 1000 interception stations that collected information in our own country. We can keep in mind that Sweden has always controlled most of the core technology around this with telephones and infrastructure and Sweden is known as a double player...

... we have always played on both sides, intelligence is no exception and Stockholm is known as a spy center, a sanctuary for spies where east and west spies hung out as wars raged outside our country. Claude Dansey was responsible for Trotskijs return to Russia...

It's hard to believe that Dansey just randomly got himself to arrange a trip to Trotsky to Russia. It is more likely that he was ordered by someone to do this ... it is good to keep in mind that the English Empire has been a power factor for a long time, but that as ... the information was controlled from another party, the empire became increasingly toothless. . Without controlling information flows, you are not in control is a safe argument. There is a country that was early on the ball with the understanding that it is important to...

control telephone lines, telegraphs, railway lines, etc. You can search for Ericsson and any country and see what it looked like historically. In the USA, for example, ericsson worked in parallel with the construction of railways. Someone laid rails and Ericsson laid ...

...telephone lines next to it. This is completely open and can be found, for example, on their website. The pony express was phased out and the telegraphs came in and now no-one could do business without anyone getting involved. There was always someone who listened and ...

...was an intermediary. Such an advantage can easily be guessed to exist still today. If the same MO has been developed and refined with the same name behind now as then, one can easily assume that it is possible to rig everything from elections to the stock market.

We can take an anecdote with Domonion They are in Canada, Scandinavia, the Baltic states and there is also something more, Nasdaq. In all places, there is one and the same telecom company, but no one has thought of using this? And who might control Nasaq? https://t.co/qq7yRQfk1N

Back to Arvid Lindman, who off course didn't know anyone... He became board leader of LM Ericsson, foreign minister and he together with the conservatives, the right he paid Lenin to lead the revolution. There might have been some sort of planning behind this...

Now we expand to Finland and Gustaf Mannerheim.
Finland's national idol but it turns out that he only had his feet left over the edge of the jar, he had almost eaten all the jam and got stuck. Mannerheim was not allowed to become a Finnish officer from the beginning, but ...

...he became a Russian officer for the tsar. Mannerheim was among the first to flee the revolution. He was commander of the White Bridges during the Finnish Civil War. He contributed to Finnish independence from Russia through the Finnish Republican form of government in 1919...

We move forward to Sven Palme. Chairman of the Swedish-German Association. An interesting association and here was Europe's most dangerous man Lickfeldt who was also chairman of Norsk Hydro.
Lickfeldt was also a representative of Swedish IG Farben.

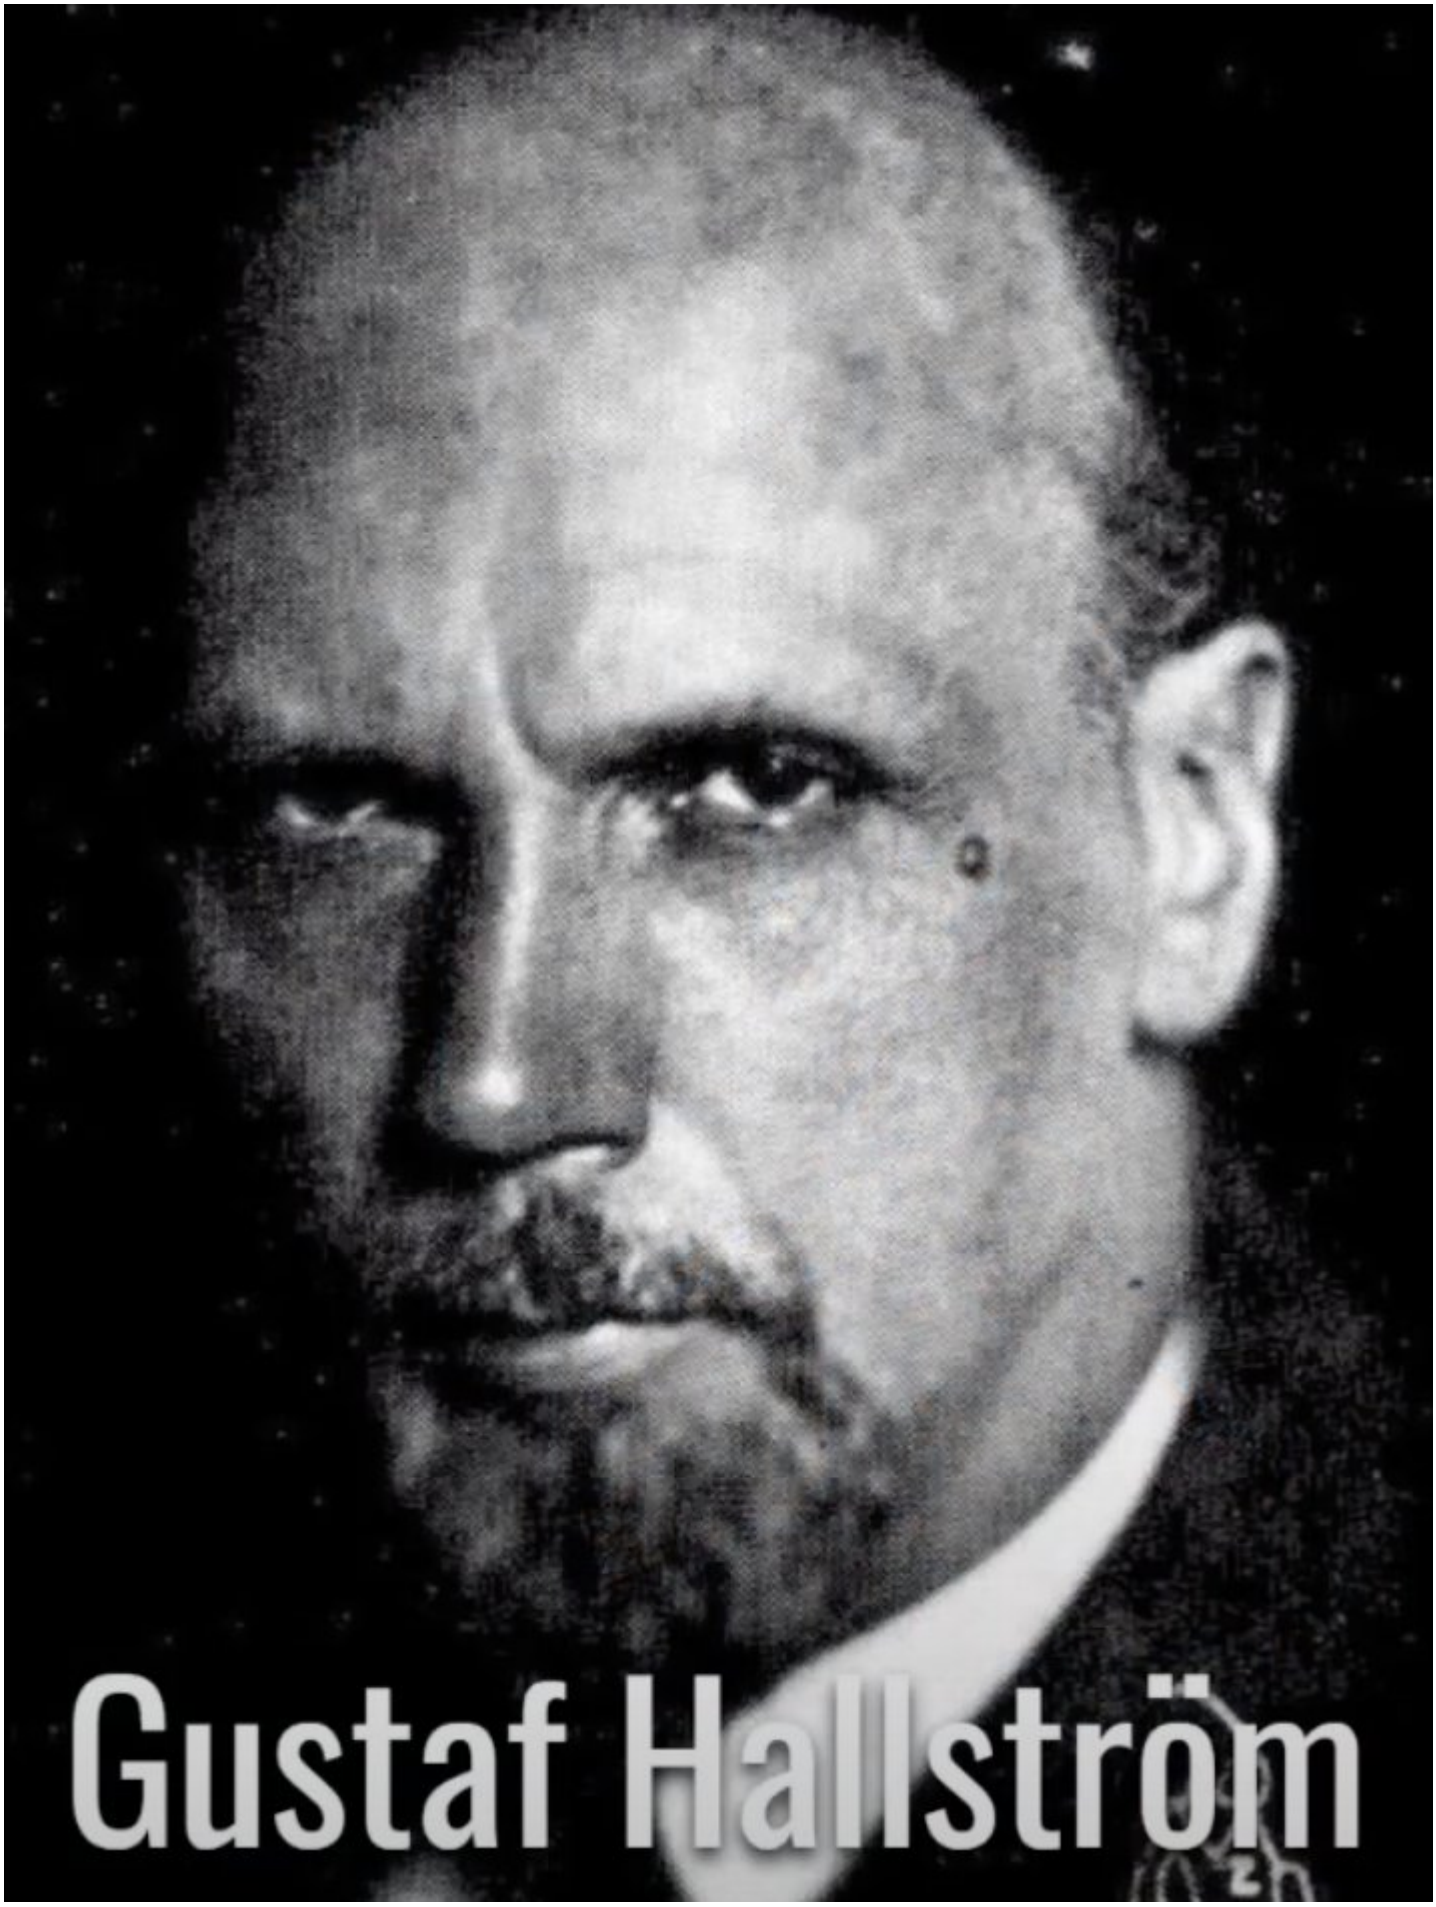

Unfortunately, there is a shortage of documents preserved about the Swedish branch of IG Farben. This is despite the fact that Wallenberg and Investor owned large parts of the parent company.
Norwegian Hydro co-founded the Nobel Peace Prize.

Norsk hydro was started and financed by Wallenberg. The Norwegians have thus never had any sovereignty, which will also prove true for Finland with Mannerheim.
Sven Palme took the initiative to help Finland's white brigades. Together with his sons and Mannerheim's younger...

...brother Johan. It's easy to get the impression that Mannerheim could possibly have known his younger brother, but that is certainly NOT the case. Just as Lindman, Wallenberg, Warburg etc didn't know each other...
Sven Palme sat on the board of Thule together with ...

...Mannerheim's brother Carl. Go back if you forgot what Thule Insurance did. Did Gustaf Mannerheim know his brother Carl? There is a possibility that he did... but off course not?

Next player Gustaf Hallström Commander of the Swedish White Brigades, brother of Ivor Thord Grey.
Grey is a very special person. He has succeeded in fighting for 13 nations. His track record is to say at least a little bit extraordinary, he was Olympic champion in archery...

... the man behind the Tazan legend and had a summer house in Roslagen where he told stories to his neighbor who took notes diligently. The neighbor's name was Astrid Lindgren best known to the world as Pippi Longstocking's mother. But Astrid has a whole series of characters...

...in her books and if you understand where she came from, you will also understand her stories better. Astrid is also said to have worked in her youth with some sort of intelligence work, listening in on telephone conversations.
So Ivor Thord Gray was, if we think about it..

, a little bit of some kind of information traveler. He did business with information. He had an ability to make quick careers in other countries' military and knew a lot about their structure. Russian Major General, English Lieutenant General etc. 13 countries and it was more..

often than not the powers of colonial rule. Back to Gustaf Hallström he is said to have inspired Göring to the Nazi swastika. Göring did not have insignificant connections to Sweden. He had connections to a group of noble families and eventually married Carin von Rosen

Von Rosen was involved in the previously mentioned railways together with Wallenberg and there is a great risk that Göring's, Von Rosen knew them.
How big is the chance that a head of state wants a man in his army who has fought for 13 nations, one can think about- Ivor Thord

Gray fought for the Russian white forces under Koltjak, he was rewarded as one of the few Swedes with both the North Star and the Order of the Sword. This without having fought a single minute for Sweden. But he did something at least under 13 other flags.

The next player will be Charles Hambro and now it's time to start a new thread before we're starting to go full circle. For those who are interested in Epstein and Ghislane, there are threads straight into Thulehuset and Sweden.
