Twitter Thread by Mazi Gburugburu

Mazi Gburugburu
@Mazigburugburu1

It was 12 months into my life on Twitter that I started my financial interventions(I was still using my anon Frantz Fanon DP so, most didn't know me). The more I tried to do informational tweets the sadder I became at the hunger of many folks and fans. As a Christian, I

Was taught that it is wicked to preach the Gospel of Hope to a hungry man and then tell him to go home and feed well without at least giving him palliatives. At first, I was quietly entering DMs until that one became controversial. I then started public interventions.Many here

Would attest to the numerous times back in the days when I was handling the interventions on my own that scammers had benefited from finances designated for others. All that reduced to the barest minimum when @bimbo_cash came on board. This is exactly two years, I don't know what

Bimbo looks like: I have never met her personally. I have not even done a video call with her. But not a dime sent to her to assist people have been unaccounted for. Bimbo has had to make cases even for folks I know very well don't mean well for her. She may be brash. She may be

Ridiculous sometimes. And other times, you may just catch her on her off-day. What you can't accuse her of is:Fraud. Assisting people makes me happy. That's what I live for. No attack will make me stop. And yes, Bimbo will continue to vet and disburse. I have had conversations

With her on approach and I am certain that she will seek to be a better person in terms of her interactions with people. Nobody is happy seeking for help in public, we will not add salt to injury by mocking them. We must assist people with humility and love and count it

A privilege and thing of joy that we are in a position to be used by God to serve humanity. Moses lost out cos he mocked the people of God and so, we must be careful how we treat those in need. Lessons have been learnt. I apologize to everyone who felt humiliated by my agent

In the process of getting help from us. We promise to do better by you and by us. We are mere flesh and blood and will constantly make mistakes but we are not afraid to learn from them and make corrections.Learning only stops when we die.And we promise to die trying to be better.

I hope this will be the last time I will have to come out of my retirement to intervene in an issue again. Let me focus on my studies please. God bless you all.