People often talk about right and left and all that. But over the last few decades what has played out in US and is being pushed into India in the earnest is this.

Used to be that faith, family and love for one's country were stabilizing forces of one's life.

2/n

The role of the govt was to enforce the rule of law; people got help from govt when they fell out of the ride. So safety net was always there as a last resort.

Now that doesn't suit those who see govt as end all and be all of our lives. So somethings have to be taken out.

So the left went after the three pillars. Faith, family and national identity/ patriotism.

Let's take family the last as that is what is the target of left in India after having dealt it a blow in the west.

What is faith? People living in a society identify with a religion that shares some common beliefs, code of conduct and in general creates an identity for that. You have judeo-Christian societies, Islamic and Hindu societies and others.

Left took a shot at this in the west

5/n

They have successfully attempted to make any expression of faith of American Christians as bigotry. For example they wanted to force a Catholic Xtian organization to provide birth control in their insurance plans knowing they will resist.

6/n

As such Abrahamic religions have a hard time retaining believers in west and Left by equating any expression of faith into bigotry has shamed them and created at least 2 generations of self hate.

Ok so people are non practicing whatever religions. It doesn't stop there.

People need to believe in something. So after removing traditional faith from their minds they quickly replaced with dogma of Left. In fact the Dogma of Left is stricter than any religion.

They removed traditional faith and replaced it with Leftist faith.

1st pillar removed

What the Left did though, quite diabolical, was on one hand attack Xtianity in US while at the same time help Xtianity convert Hindus and support Islamists' attack Hindu civilization.

They believe once Hinduism is wiped out they will rpt in Ind what they did in US.

Next comes love of a country. Now most countries in the world have done things they ought not to be proud of. God knows west has plenty to be feel bad and learn from.

However rather than make it a learning opportunity, they used it to deepen self hate.

10/n

Used to be if you were proud of your national identity it was a virtue. Now they have made it an attribute of fascism. So if you said I'm proud of being an American - you would be made to own the entire body of mistakes of US and self flagellate for it.

11/n

They would however not do this for Islamic regimes and bend over backwards defending them. Why? Because they believe Islamists will help them defeat and destroy other societies.

So they have shaken the second pillar too. And this is starting in India too.

12/n

Now we come to the worst set of actions. Even if faith is shaken having strong family bonds makes it easy for them to be self reliant and bring them back to some sort of faith eventually.

Plus govt was still a peripheral player in most lives. That has to change.

Men and women play amazing and unique roles in lives of their children. But parents were the head of the family. That had to change. So they worked on critical gender theory to essentially make men and women see each other as opponents.
