Twitter Thread by POLITICO

POLITICO
@politico

1/5 We’re 14 days away from Election Day, and history tells us Republicans are going to lose the House. (But history also told us that Donald Trump wouldn’t win the presidency.)

2/5 Most Republicans would tell you today they think Democrats will end up with a narrow majority, which would create an ugly couple of years of governing https://t.co/fPTdEsyTvC

3/5 If Republicans do keep the House, we don’t really know what their agenda would be. But it seems likely they’ll try to pass a health care bill again, and make some of their tax cuts permanent https://t.co/fPTdEsyTvC

4/5 If Democrats take the House, expect the chamber to pass a lot of legislation that will get stopped dead in its tracks in the Senate. And expect lots of oversight. https://t.co/fPTdEsyTvC

5/5 You can also expect Nancy Pelosi to be the speaker if Dems win the House. She’s preparing to lead a big freshman class, and she also says she’s ready to foster generational change.

More in today’s @playbookplus newsletter: https://t.co/xwPBQg9oKG

