

Twitter Thread by Vincent Bevins

Vincent Bevins

@Vinncent

89% of the real results are in (not exit polls) -

55.7% Bolsonaro

44.3% Haddad

Jair Bolsonaro will almost certainly be the next President of Brazil. This is a sad day for fans of democracy and human rights all around the world.

You can check that page for final confirmation. But now, the question is a different one - going forward, how much will Congress, the courts, and Brazilian civil society in general limit the aspirations of one of the world's most extreme elected figures? <https://t.co/waXhiAVS2q>

Eleições 2018 - Apuração

PRESIDENTE APURAÇÃO >

88,73% urnas apuradas

Jair Bolsonaro PSL

55,70 %

dos votos válidos

Fernando Haddad PT

44,30 %

dos votos válidos

Nulos 7,38%

Branco 2,15%

Válidos 93.264.681 votos

Atualizado em 28.out.2018 às 18h58 | Fonte: TSE

I have called Bolsonaro a "would-be dictator" and said as a candidate, he is more extreme than Rodrigo Duterte. But the shape of his Presidency is far from determined. It will depend on how much Brazil's institutions, and Brazil's citizens, push back against his worst impulses.

International opinion, and international pressure, will matter. Brazilians have noticed that the world began to fear Bolsonaro. And I beg of you, please, do not call him "The Brazilian Trump." It's just incorrect, and it also invites a third of Americans to sign off on fascism.