The Coming Insurrection

It's useless to wait—for a breakthrough, for the revolution, the nuclear apocalypse or a social movement. To go on waiting is madness. The catastrophe is not coming, it is here. We are already situated within the collapse of a civilization. It is within this reality that we must choose sides.

Gunpowder Plot

Main article: Gunpowder Plot

In 1604 Fawkes became involved with a small group of English Catholics, led by Robert Catesby, who planned to assassinate the Protestant King James and replace him with his daughter, third in the line of succession, Princess Elizabeth.^{[15][16]} Fawkes was described by the Jesuit priest and former school friend Oswald Tesimond as "pleasant of approach and cheerful of manner, opposed to quarrels and strife ... loyal to his friends". Tesimond also claimed Fawkes was "a man highly skilled in matters of war", and that it was this mixture of piety and professionalism that endeared him to his fellow conspirators.^[3] The author Antonia Fraser describes Fawkes as "a tall, powerfully built man, with thick reddish-brown hair, a flowing moustache in the tradition of the time, and a bushy reddish-brown beard", and that he was "a man of action ... capable of intelligent argument as well as physical endurance, somewhat to the surprise of his enemies."^[5]

The first meeting of the five central conspirators took place on Sunday 20 May 1604, at an inn called the Duck and Drake, in the fashionable Strand district of London.^[1] Catesby had already proposed at an earlier meeting with Thomas Wintour and John Wright to kill the King and his government by blowing up "the Parliament House with gunpowder". Wintour, who at first objected to the plan, was convinced by Catesby to travel to the continent to seek help. Wintour met with the Constable of Castile, the exiled Welsh spy Hugh Owen,^[18] and Sir William Stanley, who said that Catesby would receive no support from Spain. Owen did, however, introduce Wintour to Fawkes, who had by then been away from England for many years, and thus was largely unknown in the country. Wintour and Fawkes were contemporaries; each was militant, and had first-hand experience of the unwillingness of the Spaniards to help. Wintour told Fawkes of their plan to "doe some whatt in Ingland if the pece with Spaine heaped us nott",^[3] and thus in April 1604 the two men returned to England.^[17] Wintour's news did not surprise Catesby; despite positive noises from the Spanish authorities, he feared that "the deeds would nott answere".^[9]

One of the conspirators, Thomas Percy, was promoted in June 1604, gaining access to a house in London that belonged to John Whynniard, Keeper of the King's Wardrobe. Fawkes was installed as a caretaker and began using the pseudonym John Johnson, servant to Percy.^[20] The contemporaneous account of the prosecution (taken from Thomas Wintour's confession)^[21] claimed that the conspirators attempted to dig a tunnel from beneath Whynniard's house to Parliament, although this story may have been a government fabrication; no evidence for the existence of a tunnel was presented by the prosecution, and no trace of one has ever been found; Fawkes himself did not admit the existence of such a scheme until his fifth interrogation, but even then he could not locate the tunnel.^[22] If the story is true, however, by December 1604 the conspirators were busy tunnelling from their rented house to the House of Lords. They ceased their efforts when, during tunnelling, they heard a noise from above. Fawkes was sent out to investigate, and returned with the news that the tenant's widow was clearing out a nearby undercroft, directly beneath the House of Lords.^{[3][23]}

The plotters purchased the lease to the room, which also belonged to John Whynniard. Unused and filthy, it was considered an ideal hiding place for the gunpowder the plotters planned to store.^[24] According to Fawkes, 20 barrels of gunpowder were brought in at first, followed by 16 more on 20 July.^[25] On 28 July however, the ever-present threat of the plague delayed the opening of Parliament until Tuesday, 5 November.^[26]

Moon Landing Flag 64

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (NNS) -- Capt. Todd Marzano, commanding officer, Pre-Commissioning Unit (PCU) John F. Kennedy (CVN 79), and crew on Nov. 6 unveiled the seal of the U.S. Navy's second Ford-class aircraft carrier, under construction at Newport News Shipbuilding-Huntington Ingalls Industries.

Elements of the seal honor President John F. Kennedy, his service to the Navy and his vision for space exploration.

The 35 stars around the outer ring represent Kennedy as our nation's 35th president. The 35th star is after his middle initial, and the two gold stars between CVN and 79 symbolize that this is the second aircraft carrier bearing his name and legacy.

The Roman numeral "CIX" or 109, is a tribute to Kennedy's heroic naval service as commander of Patrol Boat 109 in the South Pacific. The moon backdrop represents Kennedy's instrumental role in the nation's space program.

"No nation which expects to be the leader of other nations can expect to stay behind in the race for space," Kennedy said in a Sept. 12, 1962, speech at Rice University in Houston, Texas. "For the eyes of the world now look into space, to the moon and to the planets beyond, and we have vowed that we shall not see it governed by a hostile

Never, in our history, has a communications project such as this taken place.
>Return Power Back to the People
>Truth, Transparency, and Equal Justice Under the Law.
We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men (& women) are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men (& Women), deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. —

Fixing my typo. John not James is the effects of pleurisy. Fawkes admitted his intention to blow up the House of Lords, and expressed regret at his failure to kill King James, who described Fawkes as possessing "a Roman resolution".^[39]

His admiration did not, however, prevent him from ordering on 6 November that "John Johnson" be tortured, to reveal the names of his accomplices. He was first tortured with manacles, but more severe if necessary, authorising the use of the rack: "the gentler Torture ma tenditur [and so by degrees proceeding to the worst]".^{[37][41]} Fawkes was transferred to the Tower of London. The King ordered such as "as to what he is, For I can never yet hear of any man that knows him", "When and where he learned to speak French?"^[42] The room in which Fawkes was interrogated subsequently became known as the Guy Fawkes Room.^[43]

Waad, Lieutenant of the Tower, supervised the torture and obtained Fawkes's confession.^[37] He searched his prisoner, and found nothing but a sword and a dagger. He was then pressed to Guy Fawkes. To Waad's surprise, "Johnson" remained silent, revealing nothing about the plot or its authors.^[44] On 7 November he spoke with Waad, who reported to Salisbury "He [Johnson] told us that since he undertook this action he did not care for God he might perform that which might be for the advancement of the Catholic Faith and saving his own soul". According to Waad, Fawkes managed to rest through the night, despite his being warned that he would be interrogated until "I had gotten the inward secrets of his thoughts and all his complices".^[45] His composure was broken at some point during the following day.^[46]

On 7 November, Sir Edward Hoby remarked "Since Johnson's being in the Tower, he beginneth to speak English". Fawkes revealed his true name, John Johnson, on 7 November, and told his interrogators that there were five people involved in the plot to kill the King. He began to reveal the details of the plot on 8 November, and told how they intended to place Princess Elizabeth on the throne. His third confession, on 9 November, named Francis Tresham. Following the Ridolfi plot of 1571 prisoners were made to dictate their confessions, before copying and signing them, if they were still able to do so.^[47] Although it is uncertain if he was tortured on the rack, Fawkes's scrawled signature suggests the suffering he endured in the hands of his interrogators.^[48]
