WASHINGTON — Joe Biden was sworn in as the 46th president of the United States on Wednesday, declaring that "democracy has prevailed" and summoning American resilience and unity to confront the deeply divided nation's historic confluence of crises.

Biden took the oath at a U.S. Capitol that had been battered by an insurrectionist siege just two weeks earlier. On a cold Washington morning dotted with snow flurries, the quadrennial ceremony unfolded within a circle of security forces evocative of a war zone and devoid of crowds because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Instead, Biden gazed out over 200,000 American flags planted on the National Mall to symbolize those who could not attend in person.

"The will of the people has been heard, and the will of the people has been heeded. We've learned again that democracy is precious and democracy is fragile. At this hour, my friends, democracy has prevailed," Biden

BILLINGS — Montana's congressional delegation, divided on accepting the election results of all the states just two weeks ago, congratulated President Joe Biden on Wednesday after attending his inauguration.

U.S. Rep. Matt Rosendale, who had refused to certify the results of two swing states lost by Donald Trump, said in a press release that he would be praying for Biden and Vice President Kamala Harris.

"I was honored to attend the Inauguration today and represent the great state of Montana," Rosendale said. "The inauguration is one of our most sacred institutions of the United States government, and it has been an event that has happened every four years since our constitutional government began. I will continue to hold President Biden and Vice President Harris in my thoughts and prayers as they begin to lead our nation."

Helena Public Schools is surveying families about the district's response to the COVID-19 pandemic and asking whether students should return to in-person classes five days a week.

According to school district Superintendent Tyler Ream, the survey data will be reviewed by a committee considering changes to the district's current hybrid online and in-person model.

"This will be a single-topic committee with recommendations coming to the board in early February," Ream said. "Right now, we are planning on three meetings in which the committee would review/discuss data and guidance and develop needed changes to our plan and phasing practices."

Ream said the hybrid model put in place during the fall semester was informed by guidance from July 2020, which has since been supplanted by new

According to court documents filed by St. Peter's Health, an oncologist who was dismissed from the hospital last year incorrectly treated a patient for lung cancer for 11 years before it was determined that the person did not have the disease at the time of death.

The hospital's legal counsel also said that it learned of "alarming narcotic prescribing practices" by Dr. Thomas Weiner, who is contesting his dismissal in court. They said several patients came to the facility's Cancer Treatment Center for narcotics prescriptions on the first day of his absence, but there was no documentation that he had ever prescribed these narcotics, "much less a treatment plan to justify the medications."

They said the only way they were able to determine what Weiner had prescribed was by reviewing the Montana Prescription Drug Registry, which

Joe Biden became the 46th president of the United States on Wednesday, declaring that “democracy has prevailed” as he took the helm of a deeply divided nation and inherited a confluence of crises arguably greater than any faced by his predecessors.

“This is America’s day. This is democracy’s day. A day of history and hope, of renewal and resolve.”

And then he pivoted to challenges ahead, acknowledging the surging virus that has claimed more than 400,000 lives in the United States.

“We have much to do in this winter of peril, and significant possibilities: much to repair, much to restore, much to heal, much to build and much to gain,” Biden said.

Biden Calls for Unity

'We must end this uncivil war that pits red against blue'

President Biden, with first lady Jill Biden at his side, is sworn in as the nation's 46th leader at the Capitol on Wednesday by Chief Justice John Roberts.

BY CATHERINE LUCKY
AND KEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON—Joe Biden was sworn in as the 46th president of the United States on Wednesday, calling for unity as he assumed leadership of a nation battered by a once-in-a-century pandemic and the recent deadly storming of the U.S. Capitol.

At a midday ceremony overshadowed by health and safety concerns, Mr. Biden was sworn in by Chief Justice John Roberts, repeating the oath of office on the west steps of the Capitol with his hand on a family Bible. The inauguration was attended by a relatively small, distanced audience, a contrast to the crowds that typically line the National Mall to celebrate a new administration.

Declaring "democracy has prevailed" in the face of repeated challenges to the election results, Mr. Biden implored the public to stand together in the face of division and crisis. "We must end this uncivil war that pits red against blue," Mr. Biden, a Democrat, said. "Or rural versus urban, conservative versus liberal. We can do this if we open our souls instead of hardening our hearts."

Former President Donald Trump became the first president to skip his successor's inauguration in 150 years, instead leaving Washington for his Florida estate early in the morning, vowing in his final public comments as president, "I will be back."

Executive Orders Lay Out Broad Agenda

BY ALEX LEARY

WASHINGTON—President Biden on his first day in office took a range of executive actions, including implementing a national mask mandate on federal property, revoking a permit for the Keystone XL oil pipeline and reversing a travel ban from several largely Muslim and African countries.

Coming after Mr. Biden was inaugurated as the 46th president in a midday ceremony, the actions are intended to signal a more aggressive approach to the coronavirus pandemic and end some of former President Donald Trump's key policies while setting the agenda for the next four years.

Mr. Biden, a Democrat, signed executive orders from the Oval Office in the late afternoon. "I thought there's no time to wait. Get to work immediately," he said, sitting at the Resolute Desk and wearing a mask.

Mr. Biden signed 15 executive orders and two executive actions on his first day in office, far more than any of his modern predecessors, none of whom signed more than one.

Mr. Trump signed an order on his Inauguration Day aimed at reversing the Affordable Care Act, while Barack Obama didn't sign any on Jan. 20, 2009. Bill Clinton signed an ethics order on his first day. All of them signed additional orders during their first week in office.

Mr. Biden's orders cover domestic and international matters, including ceasing Mr. Trump's withdrawal from the World Health Organization and rejoining the Paris climate accord.

"These are two early steps to advance the president's ambition to re-engage in the world," said incoming national security adviser Jake Sullivan.

Rejoining the Paris pact would be only a first step in Mr. Biden's broad effort to elevate climate change to a crisis among his administration's top priorities.

President, Tested by Tragedy, Faces Tough Challenge Ahead

BY GERALD F. SEIB

Over the past five decades, Joe Biden endured multiple personal tragedies and saw his political obituary written over and over again—yet always found a way to pick up the pieces and move forward.

On Wednesday, he was inaugurated as the nation's 46th president and proceeded to tell the nation it could do the same: pick up the pieces and move forward. Simple as that sounds, in the harsh environment of 2021 it will be as tough as nearly any previous test Mr. Biden has faced.

Mr. Biden was sworn in amid extraordinary circumstances: an ongoing pandemic, the glaring absence of an outgoing president who refused to accept the legitimacy of last year's election, the scars of a mob attack designed to prevent him from taking office still visible on the Capitol just behind him, the nation's first woman and first minority vice president at his side.

Any one of those conditions would have made the occasion historic. Put them all together and you had an inaugural unlike any America has ever seen, or is likely to see again. All of which gave extra poignancy to the ques-

Biden sought to immediately turn the corner on Donald Trump's polarizing presidency, inviting Republicans to join him in confronting the nation's dire economic, social and health crises even as he began dismantling his predecessor's legacy with orders to halt construction of his border wall, lift his travel ban and rejoin the Paris climate agreement.

With his hand on a 5-inch-thick Bible that has been in his family for 128 years, Biden recited the 35-word oath administered by Chief Justice John Roberts at 11:49 a.m., 11 minutes before the constitutionally prescribed noon hour.

WASHINGTON — Joseph Robinette Biden Jr. was sworn in as the 46th president of the United States on Wednesday, taking office at a moment of profound economic, health and political crises with a promise to seek unity after a tumultuous four years that tore at the fabric of American society.

With his hand on a 5-inch-thick Bible that has been in his family for 128 years, Biden recited the 35-word oath of office swearing to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution" in a ceremony administered by Chief Justice John Roberts, completing the process at 11:49 a.m., 11 minutes before the authority of the presidency formally changes hands.

BIDEN INAUGURATED HARRIS IS SWORN IN AS HISTORY-MAKING VP

46th president calls for unity as a bold challenge to a nation torn by crises

PRESIDENT BIDEN, after being sworn in by Chief Justice John G. Roberts Jr., soon got to work reversing controversial Trump policies.

BY JANET HOKE AND
JENNIFER HABERKORN

WASHINGTON — Joseph Robinette Biden Jr. was inaugurated as the 46th president of the United States on Wednesday, assuming office amid several crises after routing a predecessor who fought to stay in power, and clearing the way for a beleaguered nation to turn the page on one of the most divisive chapters in its political history.

Before taking his oath on the Capitol's West Front, Biden saw a historic barrier shattered as Kamala Harris, formerly a senator from California, was sworn in as the first woman, Black person and South Asian American to become vice president. Sonia Sotomayor, the first Latina Supreme Court justice, administered Harris' oath.

In his inaugural address, Biden tried to rally the country to meet the historic challenges of COVID-19, a struggling economy, racial tensions and political divisions that have provoked violence and death.

"To overcome these challenges, to restore the soul and secure the future of America, requires so much more than words and requires the most elusive of all things in a democracy: unity," the new Democratic president said.

Calling for unity is an inaugural staple, but Biden's appeal resonated due to the country's dire straits. He plainly was banking on Americans' desire to transcend politics and find ways to quell extremists' violence, control the pandemic, rebuild the economy and, even for some Republicans, put the Trump era behind them.

Without ever naming former President Trump in his 21-minute address, Biden made pointed note of the lingering damage from his predecessor's postelection campaign to stay in power, which tested the foundations of democracy — damage that was literally evident in places throughout the Capitol, which had been violently invaded just 14 days before by supporters of the outgoing Republican president.

"We have learned again that democracy is precious, democracy is fragile, and at this hour, democracy has prevailed," the new president said.

Still, Biden's message most likely fell flat among the many Republicans who, swayed by Trump's false claims that the election was rigged against him, refuse to accept the legitimacy of Biden's presidency.

"At this moment, we are a divided country," said Rep. Lee Zeldin (R-N.Y.), one of those in Congress who backed Trump's efforts to overturn the election result.

Biden's address, while urging conciliation, was laden with stinging implied indictments of his predecessor.

WASHINGTON — There was never a doubt President Biden would call for unity at his swearing-in — the declaration that "we are the United States of America" peppered his speeches throughout the long presidential campaign.

"Unity" appeared a dozen times in Wednesday's 21-minute speech and as the topic of a proclamation for a Day of Unity that the new president signed shortly after he took the oath.

But at an inauguration surrounded by troops and high fences, amid unprecedented levels of security to protect against potential attack by supporters of his defeated predecessor, in the shadow of a Capitol still marred by a deadly riot just two weeks ago, Biden this time coupled those calls with something sterner:

"The recent weeks and months have taught us a lesson."

WASHINGTON — Kamala Devi Harris strutted between the metal barricades and the sparse crowd along Pennsylvania Avenue, clutching her grandniece's hand and waving at cheering supporters. As she approached the White House, she locked arms with her husband and walked between the gates and up the stairs of the Eisenhower Executive Office Building, the trumpets blaring as she made history.

For the first time since the country's founding, a woman — a daughter of immigrants from India and Jamaica — was entering the heart of American power as vice president.

"Just walking to work," she said along the way, laughing.

It was one of many scaled-down moments Wednesday, an Inauguration Day for Harris that was

WASHINGTON — Joe Biden was sworn in as the 46th president of the United States on Wednesday, declaring that "democracy has prevailed" and summoning American resilience and unity to confront the deeply divided nation's historic confluence of crises.

Denouncing a national "uncivil war," Biden took the oath at a U.S. Capitol that had been battered by an insurrectionist siege just two weeks earlier. Then, taking his place in the White House Oval Office,
