We called on Biden to remove ALL Trump holdovers who could legally be fired on day one. So how'd he do?

It was a good start but many more still need to be dismissed.

Let's recap:

Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) Director Kathy Kraninger?

Fired.

United States Agency for Global Media (USAGM) Director Michael Pack?

Fired.

Voice of America Director Robert Reilly?

Fired.

General Counsel of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) Peter Robb?

Fired.

Deputy General Counsel of the National Labor Relations Board Alice Stock?

Fired.

Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI) Director Chris Wray, who failed to adequately warn of the January 6 attempted coup?

Not fired.

Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Commissioner Charles Rettig, who was handpicked to help hide the President's tax returns (a job he excelled at)?

Not fired.

Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA) Mark Calabria, who has a plan to make mortgages more expensive and less accessible?

Not fired.

Social Security Administration (SSA) Commissioner Andrew Saul and Deputy Commissioner David Black who are undermining social security and union-busting the SSA workforce?

Not fired.

How about the 93 US Attorneys who sat by and watched all that the Trump administration did and were deemed loyal enough to Trump not to be dismissed?

Not fired.
