

Twitter Thread by Andrew Roth

Andrew Roth

@RothTheReporter

Michigan Sen. Lana Theis joins the growing conservative trend of baselessly accusing political opponents of being pedophiles/groomers. #MILeg

LANA THEIS

—FOR STATE SENATE—

Last Thursday, I opened the Senate session with an invocation praying for our children's safety. Several of my Democratic colleagues were so offended, they walked out!

Our children are under assault in our schools - the last place we should be worried about them.

- Gender-bending indoctrination, confusing them about their identities
- Exposure to inappropriate sexual content, stealing their innocence
- Race-based education - Critical Race Theory - pitting children against each other

Sen. Mallory McMorrow, who was mentioned by name in Sen. Lana Theis' fundraising email, points out that campaign rhetoric can have real world consequences. <https://t.co/v0oBpDN00s>

What I need the lobby corps to know: Grappling with a colleague accusing you of grooming children, the types of QAnon claims that led a gunman to open fire on a DC pizza place believing that he was saving children, makes it impossible to focus on your client's bills.

— Mallyory McMorrow (@MallyoryMcMorrow) April 19, 2022

Sen. Lana Theis' fundraising email accusing Sen. Mallyory McMorrow of grooming seems to be backfiring.

McMorrow's response on the Senate floor now has 3.5 million views and counting, with fundraising links in the replies, after Hillary Clinton shared a video of the speech. #MILeg <https://t.co/sBmo5f3g8z>

"I know that hate will only win if people like me stand by and let it happen."

Please watch this incredible speech from Michigan State Senator @MallyoryMcMorrow, who is not standing by. pic.twitter.com/0w6AiH4QoH

— Hillary Clinton (@HillaryClinton) April 19, 2022