Every stock that goes up 5 times or more follows a fixed pattern .

Here's a thread ■

This will help us identify such stocks with a systematic and simple investing approach.

I use the following concepts to identify stocks which can move 5 times

- Relative Strength
- Stage Analysis
- Volume Analysis

1/n

I believe that every stock must outperform Nifty before it becomes a multibagger. I use relative strength to identify stocks that are outperforming Nifty.

2/n

I then divides stocks in to four phases. I pick stocks that are in stage 2 or uptrend phase. I use moving average to identify stocks that are entering stage 2 advance.

3/n

Finally, I look at price and volume action to confirm entries and exits from the stock.

I have given several examples of stocks like Yes Bank, IEX, HSCL, Elecon Engineering, JSW Energy etc.

I insist that investors must not try to find bottoms or tops with this strategy...rather they must focus on riding the trend.
