

Twitter Thread by Bitcoin vs The Fed

Bitcoin vs The Fed

@BTCvsFED

You may have landed here via a billboard in your community

The goal of this project is to bring Bitcoin awareness to those who can benefit most - avg citizens, not Wall St

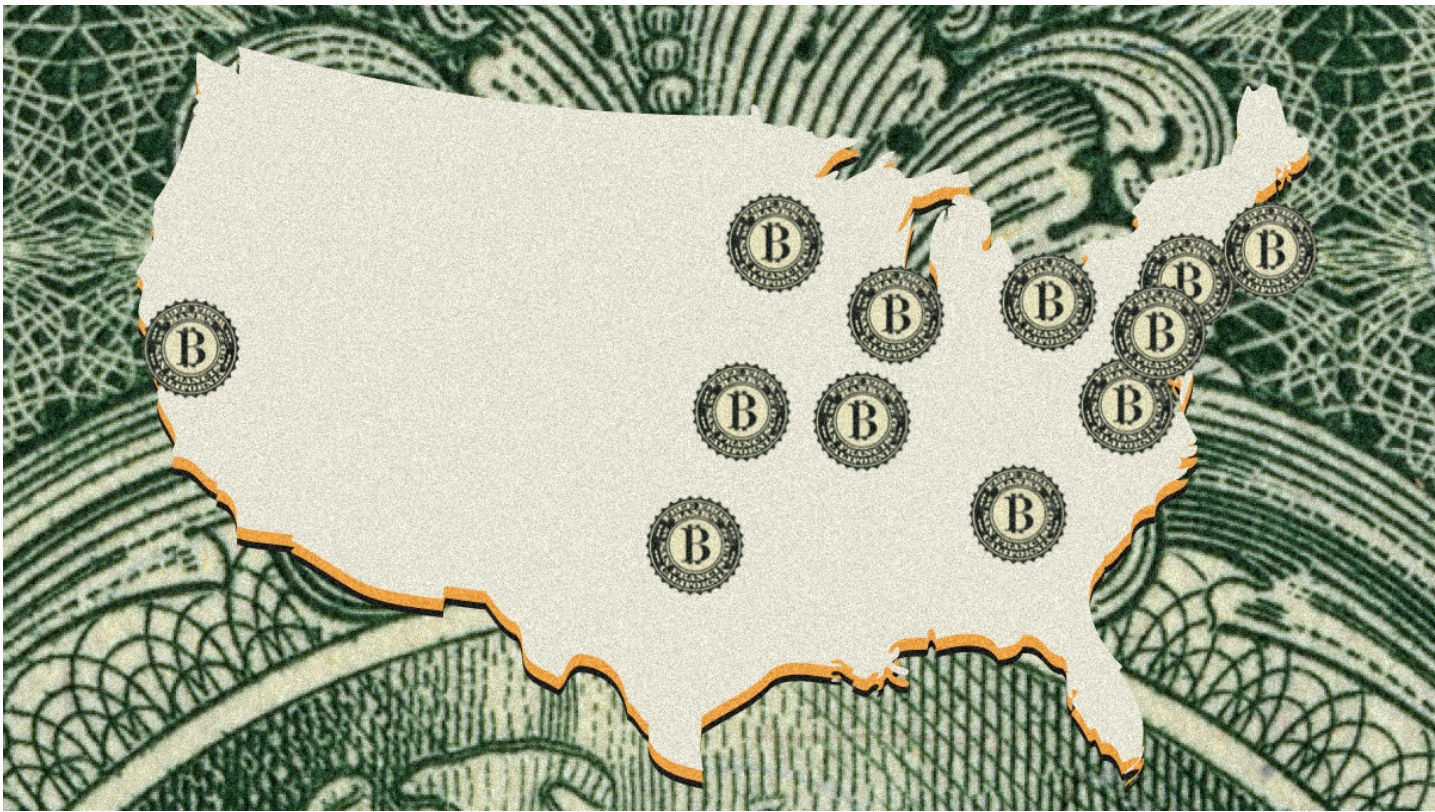

Follow to learn about #Bitcoin and why it's better than endless money printing and stimulus check hopes

There are a dozen billboards - one in every Federal Reserve bank city and each w/ a unique message

These banks exist to “provide stable monetary policy and a safe and flexible financial system,” but it’s not working

The billboard art and messages will explain why

While waiting for photos of the billboards to surface, let's talk about what exactly is Bitcoin (BTC)

Maybe you heard about it in the news recently b/c the price has gone up. You might feel late to the game, but you're not

It's early and Bitcoin is here to stay

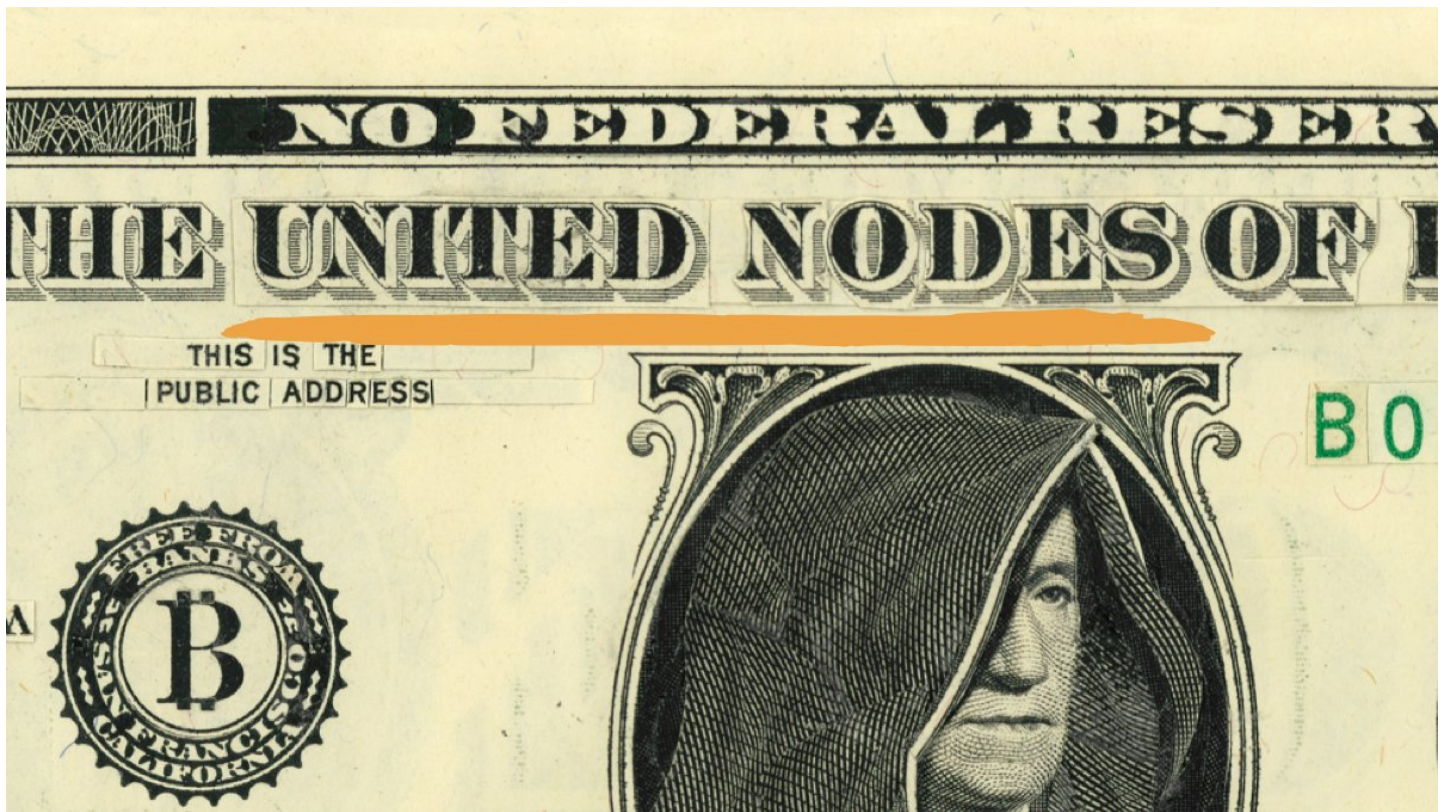

One of the most interesting things about it is that it can't go away

It's decentralized, meaning no person or government can control it. That's a good thing because money is used to control people

You can send BTC to someone (peer-to-peer) w/out needing permission or a bank

When you send or receive BTC, a decentralized network of computers (nodes) works together to confirm the transaction is legit

If so, it is added to the bitcoin blockchain - basically a public record of all the transactions

Everyone can see the transactions

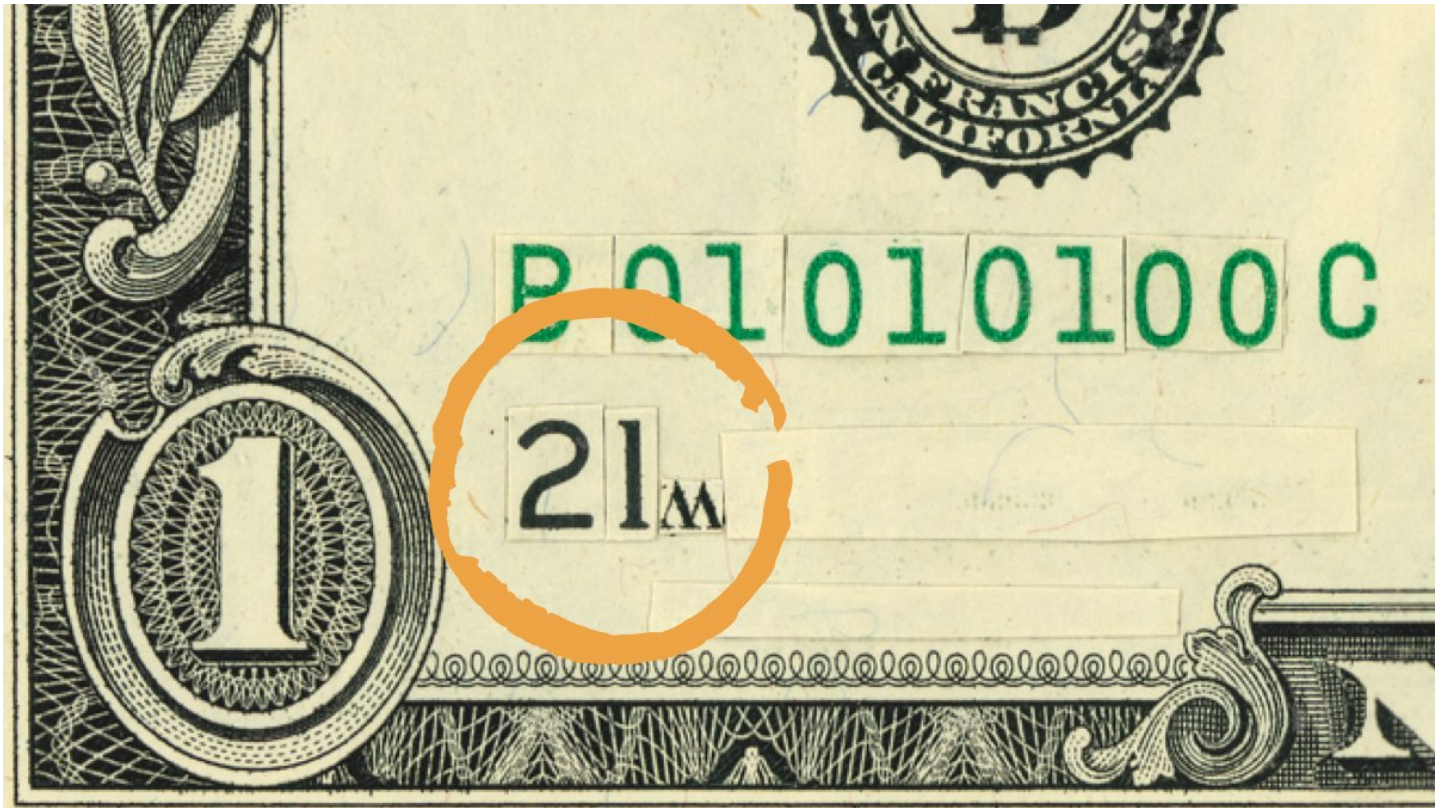

And everyone in the world is free to use this new form of money

Everyone can also see the code that makes up Bitcoin

Included in this code is a cap on the number of bitcoin that will ever be created

21 million. That's it. And it's a game changer

Bitcoin's creator who goes by Satoshi Nakamoto recognized that printing money endlessly gave governments too much control and hurt those not in power

Satoshi made an alternative w/ no leader that gave power back to the people. And then Satoshi left...never to be heard from again

Over the next few weeks, the billboards will be used to discuss why a money free from central control that can't be printed at will is better for society

Also how to buy/earn bitcoin and what to do with it once you have it

Join along...a new era is upon us

