

In return, "Jason" was supposed to keep to himself the information he had researched in Qatar, that a high-ranking person in the emirate of Qatar was financially supporting Hezbollah.

The content of this article corresponds - according to the knowledge gained to date - to Facts. For the sake of the coherence of the presentation, a somewhat broader quote should be given:

"The world of secret services, private agents and pullers remains the public usually hidden. Only rarely does the curtain rise a little and allows intimate insights. One such case is currently taking place: between Berlin and Brussels and the Qatari capital Doha. It's about money and big politics, about guns trade and terrorism. And last but not least, a question of morality: how far is allowed a respected German PR agency go about their business?"

*The story begins with Jason G. , a private contractor, who repeatedly works for various security agencies and intelligence services, has its own small company and which his operations have led halfway around the world others to Doha. Qatar, a small, wealthy emirate in the Persian Gulf that is located in who wants to host the soccer World Cup two years ago is an astonishingly busy ger actor in the shadowy world of the secret services and stands again and again because of the alleged support for Islamist groups under criticism.

In Doha, G. came across some unsavory information. There was an alleged cher arms deal with war material from Eastern Europe, presumably through a company should be settled in Qatar. And there were alleged cash flows of several rich Qataris and Lebanese exiles from Doha to Hezbollah - the organization that is part of the government in Lebanon, but internationally banned as a terrorist organization and has been banned in Germany since April. The donations should be raised with knowledge Influential government official handled through a charity organization in Doha have been.

<https://t.co/TdaAECu35a>

The result was a thick dossier with compromising material, which ZEIT in part len could see and that has some explosiveness: Israel and the USA have been trying since A long time to dry up Hezbollah. Concrete proof that money is from golf Terrorist groups flows, would increase the pressure on Qatar and possibly sanctuary to lead. So what to do with the dossier?

At the end of 2017, Jason G. met a lawyer with excellent connections in German politics know, who in turn acquainted him with the Berlin political advisor Michael Inacker made. Inacker has been working for the consulting company WMP since 2014, since 2015 he chairman of the board. (...)

Jason G. presented the incriminating material to both the attorney and Inacker from Doha. The question was how much could one redeem with such a dossier. The Estimates ranged up to ten million euros. This is 'possibly the (target ) Amount that the informant or his lawyer receives from a sale hoped '", says Inacker today. For him the material is 'for combating the financial Islamist terrorism could potentially be significant, 'he said helped to establish contact with German security authorities, 'um to have an assessment carried out there '. The process went right up to the petages of services. The German experts should inform the informant and his judge history. The result: potentially interesting, potentially relevant.

Possible business income, see several contracts and agreements before, should be divided. "

Among the documents received after the accused left the board of the WMP were found, there is an email that he sent to the Munich-based Attorney Josef Nachmann had sent. Attached is a proposal for a provision agreement in which Nachmann Rechtsanwalts GmbH as the client and the WMP appears as the contractor. The draft provides that the WMP for the placement a commission of 7.5% of the sales achieved by the client.

There is an interesting point in the article, WMP (Inacker) still had PR contracts with both Qatar and Saudi and "Jason" had some information about arms deliveries organized by people from Qatar with suppliers in Belarus, Serbia, Macedonia, and Yemen.

Inacker and "Jason" approached the Saudi advisor with this information, and if the minutes are to believe both the advisor and Inacker decided not to pass this explosive information to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, instead wanted to profit from it.

Therefore, it appears Inacker and this Saudi advisor double-crossed the Kingdom.

NOW there is a concrete indication that the New York Public Prosecutor's office in the USA is interested in the Qatar information from "Jason"

"Jason" is represented in the USA by lawyer Rebecca Castaneda.

Stayed tuned for the next turn of events as more details will be coming down

Please see the article that was published in Germany

<https://t.co/rvMxjMLnHz>

It should be noted according to the articles it states that Inacker was targeted by a so-called western intel sting operation - in which a decoy caught was targeted in the act. "Jason" neither wants to confirm nor deny this