Twitter Thread by ScottishPanda

ScottishPanda
@PandaScottish

[thread]

I want to write a thread with a simple theme

One from a sad day four years ago

We all have more in common

There are people who want divisive culture wars

And those who don't

Pick a side

Actually scrub that

Imagine there are no

Now I am going to make it clear at the start

I did not vote for Boris Johnson

I did not vote for Brexit

I did vote for Yes in 2014 for Scotland (although I am undecided how I may vote in any future choice)

I did vote to scrap FPTP

So as befits a Scot

I am a loser

I have "sucked up" all my losses

But

I want Boris Johnson and his party to succeed in their manifesto

I want Brexit to succeed

Within the manifesto's and campaigns they promised much

And I want them to simply deliver that

I disagree with the how, what and why

But that is a by the way

I want any political party in government to succeed

Because I live in this country

And the objectives that are pursued and how they are pursued are something that affect my life, my family's life and that of my community.

I want things to be better

I want to level up

I want to ramp up

I want to build back better

But I will always ask what & whom are we leveling up from, ramping up from or building back better from?

As if you do not know where you are coming from how can you understand where and how you are going?