Thread: Introducing $JAX.v $JXMNF Jaxon Mining, who's 100% owned 466 square km Hazelton property in the Skeena Arch will prove that this mineral-rich region rivals that of the Golden Triangle. Recent chip samples in multiple surface grabs show grades of up to 5300 g/t Ag

Amongst other achievements and experience, CEO John King Burns was the former founder and chairman of Northern Orion, which was then acquired by Yamana in a $1 billion transaction, so he knows how to hold on when you have something good. Was also former chairman of Dolly Varden

The Hazelton property hosts 4 main areas of interest: Netalzul (where most of the high grade silver has been recently identified), Red Springs, Blunt Mountain, and Max. Drilling had been originally planned for Red Springs, but I believe efforts have been diverted to Netalzul

Property is close proximity to all facilities and services: highway, railway, power, and mining services.

This is the first systematic exploration of the highly mineralized property. Sporadic historical artisanal workings from the early 1900's are scattered around the property. There's silver where there was silver, and in these cases, only the surface has been scratched (literally)

The Netalzul area had been non-systemically prospected in the sixties through the eighties. One of those original prospectors, Mr. Martial Levasseur, is now an advisor to the Company.

"We have taken a page from the infamous Yukon prospector Shawn Ryan; we heard the rumors and are following the footsteps of the old prospectors." said John.

CEO John Burns: "Our team is working hard to deliver a herd of Ag, Cu and Au polymetallic elephants to our stakeholders."

I like the sound of that. Just look at the track record of project updates. You know they're thinking of the shareholders

Long hold 4-7 years, mainly silver play with Au-Cu-Co kickers. It's a chance to get in on something possibly huge before the price really moves. The team has history of delivering, and in my eyes, this is the company to unlock the next big prolific mining district in Canada

There's no posts on <https://t.co/vZy5n7lgEL>. Nothing in Twitter when you do a ticker search. Highly illiquid. Do your own due diligence, but in my opinion, this is a big opportunity in its infancy and NO ONE is onto it yet. We all know who likes BC silver in the ground.

The long chart is pre-breakout eye-candy, and on the daily chart closer-up, you can see that the recent pullback has provided me with an almost 50% discount. If the market catches on that this is a new BC $silver play, I expect to get an easy 10x into Feb and March.

Please have a look through their website to see if you can get the same inspiration and conviction as me before investing. I should also mention that because I'm from BC and love silver stocks, my judgement may be blurred. Let the trolling begin.
