okay but seriously though i've had to swallow down a lot of objections to transphobic comments from people who are friends! with other trans people! but apparently not good enough friends to put in effort not to do like 101 fuckups real fucking hard to carve out any space in gamedev at all as it is let alone having to swallow down and smile politely to shit basic research would point out is Not Okay

is it an NT thing or what bc when i make friends with someone whose identity I don't already understand i go and research to try and ensure i don't accidentally cause them pain with basic fucking mistakes that are incredibly dehumanizing not even touching on how fucking common it is to see established people deciding that today they're going to shit on a shitpost by a marginalized junior being excited about something i was really excited when i first started being able to establish myself as a dev and now im just filled with dread all of the time because frankly a lot of devs are fucking MEAN and the leftist presentation crumbles on the slightest fuckin provocation cool you want a minimum wage, that's nice, have you considered not bullying neurodiverse people today with disaffected Jokes and then digging your heels in when told you're being a fucking asshole??

have you considered getting Any understanding of power dynamics and how social media platforms and harassment work???

if i wanted my industry to improve and be more diverse i would simply do the fucking work to not be an active hazard to the people i supposedly want to work with so many people i assumed were cool because of the people following them crack and reveal themselves to be nasty as fuck the second they find a target they feel they can present themselves as Righteous in being awful about and im tired of it. please fix your shit.
