Twitter Thread by Gregory Dennis

Gregory Dennis
@Gregory79430302

Everybody knows the old adage “Son, this is gonna hurt me more than it’s gonna you.” Let me explain something to you people who feel the sadistic need to provoke me so that you can talk about my so called “anger issues” or anything else that you think you can find to...

“Constructively criticize” me about. Do I have your “attention” now?■

When somebody takes a “certain type” of “shot” at “me” no matter how “subtle” you think you are “clever” enough to be, you aren’t just taking a “shot” at “me.” I’m just the one who is responsible for appropriately responding to it and/or appropriately handling it and the way...

in which I handle it can say good things about me or it can say bad things about me. There are certain people who have been on this planet for quite some time now and have “NEVER” been held “accountable” for their actions! Some of them may even be capable of being “arrogant”...

Enough to think that just because something happened maybe 8 or 10 years ago or however long ago and I haven’t mentioned it since and may have even “forgiven” them for it, it must mean that either A)I “forgot about it” or B) they are “delusional” enough to think that I....

Believe that they were justified and I feel as though “I” was the one in the “wrong.”....

If the CEO of a company has a coke head fuckin son who’s driving the company he spent years building into the ground with what to save space we’ll just refer to as his “bull shit,” does the fact that he “loves” his son mean that he isn’t gonna “Fire” his son and does the...

Fact that he has to “fire” his own son mean that it doesn’t “hurt him more than it hurts his son” and does the fact that it “hurts him more than it hurts his own son” mean that the Vice President of the company or any of his employees are gonna hand him a box of tissues....

And lend him their to shoulders to cry on when they look to him as their leader and the man who signs their paychecks???■ Nobody wants to hear his fuckin crying and nobody give a shit about his fuckin “feelings” in this particular context because his son was fucking things....

Up for the entire company and some of them depend on that company to provide for their own sons who don’t jam millions of fuckin dollars up their noses.

Why? His son “had to go!” That’s why! ■

I’m not finished with the particular point that I’m trying to illustrate but I have other “business” to tend to and I am “behind schedule!”■ That being said..

“To be continued.” ■

