Actually myself & a few others were contacted by a Bernie FO to help find captains for districts & it got done. Bad actors in the campaign said “I made them look bad,” bc it was about optics, even if I was asked. Their anger went as far as forcing my # from my friends.

I was traveling to Iowa to cover the primary & kept getting calls incessantly demanding I take a tweet down. They badgered my friends until they gave my PERSONAL #. I refused to it was my gd right. Especially since I was asked to use social media to find help. The job got done.

There was absolute 0 “leaking of documents”. I have two other people who were also helping and someone very high up in the campaign who had to apologize to me & was angry I was harassed, bullied, emailed, & threatened via social media. We wrote a letter that never got an answer.

This was AFTER several on the ground activists knew there were bad actors in the campaign but were trying to work w it & stay silent for Bernie. One of the many mistakes the campaign made was put optics over honesty, & that was bc it was largely directed by DC consultants.

Ultimately I came to find out this whole “making us look bad” took precedent over listening to seasoned field organizers, Bernie 2016 volunteers, & many grassroots activists who had a different approach. It was all about the top dogs looking good & not very #NotMeUs.

Oh and they harassed & bullied other people involved to get my number. My friends were genuinely scared and worried bc they did not stop getting phone calls & were freaked out about how the campaign could possibly get their number.

Here is the tweet I posted after I was told to get this done. Now people in the campaign may have miscommunicated with each other which showed later on with several contradictions of hiring & firing & endorsing or un-endorsing people. https://t.co/nykZQ2aYBn

> BREAKING:Just got word the Sanders campaign has several uncovered precincts in Iowa. This means that there are caucus locations w NO trained Bernie volunteers. A precinct captain is in the room on caucus night, reps Bernie, knows caucus rules, & updates on #s. They need help...
