adding it would be helpful to the prosecution case.

"David Headley was criminal, is criminal and he has been tender pardoned because he has given certain evidence and we will use that evidence in due course of our time," he added.

He revealed that a man called Zeb Shah in Pakistan was helping him in his drug business.

During his cross-examination, Headley informed that he offered last funding to LeT in the year 2006 in Pakistan currency and he utilized his personal property to arrange the money.

On asking about the investments, Headley accepted to have properties in the UAE and Pakistan.

He also accepted that he was arrested twice in the US for drug smuggling and visited Pakistan thereafter.

Headley said that his first passport was prepared in the US by his parents and he himself prepared his new passport with the name Headley in the US itself.

MUMBAI: Saturday, December 23, will be a big day for Mumbai, with three senior leaders — President APJ Kalam, Congress president Sonia Gandhi, and Sharad Pawar — visiting the city for various events.

Gandhi is scheduled to flag off the party's BMC election campaign at Shivaji Park that morning. Nationalist Congress Party chief Sharad Pawar will be hosting a public meeting of minorities at the Shanmukhanand Hall at King's Circle. And President Kalam will attend the largest-ever gathering of IIT alumni at Bandra-Kurla complex.

All three programmes are scheduled to take place between Dadar and Bandra and are likely to draw large crowds. So, while police juggle routes and parking spaces, commuters should prepare themselves for diversions and traffic jams.

Sonia Gandhi's last rally at Shivaji Park in 2003 drew a huge crowd, a record for the party. This time, the Mumbai Regional Congress Committee expects the party to top that record.

Pawar's meeting will also be a large one, expected to draw more than 5,000 minority supporters.

The IITians are not to be left behind in the numbers game. Bandra-Kurla complex will be host to the largest gathering of IIT alumni in the world. The three-day session, starting December 23, will be inaugurated by the President. The IIT Alumni 2006 Global conference will have the likes of Sri Sri Ravishankar, George Soros, and Shashi Tharoor as guest speakers.

But Joint Commissioner of Police (Traffic) Satish Mathur feels that Mumbaikars have no cause for worry. Citing December 6, when the police managed the large crowd that had gathered for Babasaheb Ambedkar's death anniversary, as an example, he said commuters have no reason to panic.

"Ninety per cent of the travel of President Kalam and Sonia Gandhi is by helicopter," he said, "so there will be few roadblocks. They will only travel short distances by road."

SECTIONS US financial crisis not to derail India growth story: Soros

Incidentally, Soros has invested in about half a dozen ADAG firms but none of the Mukesh-run companies are known to have any such investments.

The investment in various ADAG firms is estimated to be worth about USD one billion and is said to account for over half of the total for all Indian companies.

In February this year, Soros picked up a three per cent stake in Reliance Entertainment, part of Anil Ambani group, for USD 100 million. Besides, he is understood to have a 9.5 per cent stake in Reliance ARC, an asset reconstruction unit of ADAG's financial services arm Reliance Capital.

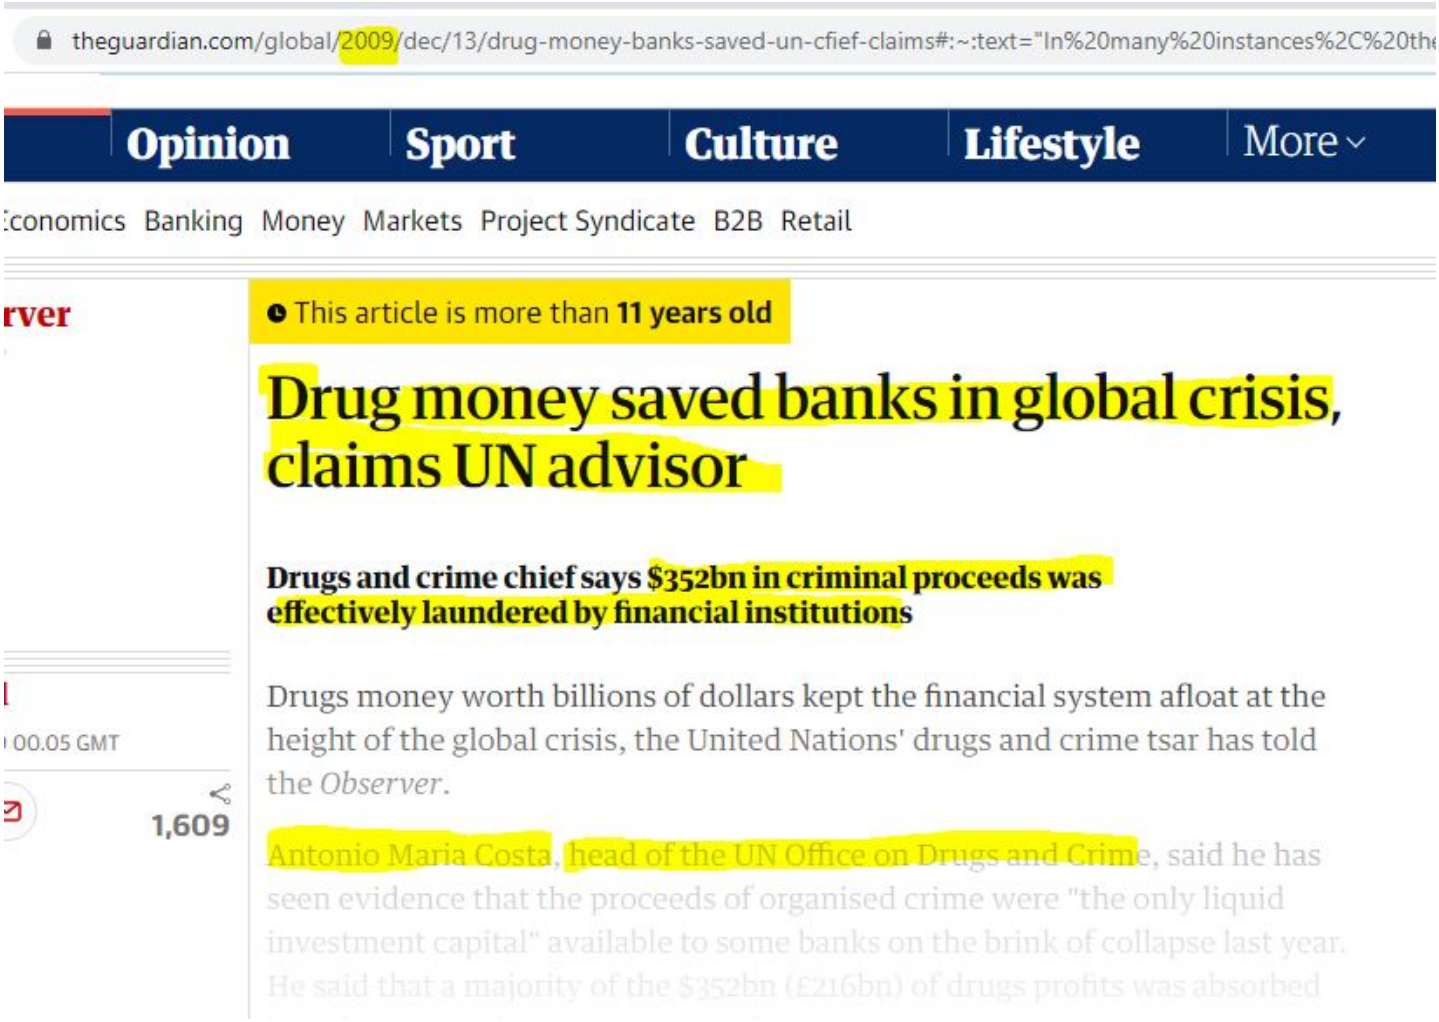

In addition, the shareholding patterns of various ADAG firms show that Soros' Quantum Mauritius fund holds a 5.23 per cent stake in Reliance Capital, 3.45 per cent in Adlabs Films and 1.15 per cent in Reliance Energy.

Soros' stake in Reliance Capital alone is valued at about Rs 1,640 crore (over 400 million dollars), while that in Reliance Energy and Adlabs is worth over 100 million dollars.
