Twitter Thread by Prateechi ■✍■■■

Prateechi ■✍■■■
@BahuRaani

#Bookmark this

Untold saga
|| Kalabhairava ||

I repeat “Untold Unsung now Unearthed”

Go through entire thread carefully. It contain mesmerizing story.
+
Next weekly thread would be on || The Major Vratas of Ancient India || according to scriptures

RT & spread the knowledge

Glimpse of the entire thread.

[illegible] |
[illegible] ||

Brahma’s skull then fell to the ground from the lotus like hand of Bhairava. That tirtha (place of pilgrimage) became Kapalamochanam, in Varanasi.
Starting the thread

Many years ago, Brahma lost his head slightly. He began to imagine that he was superior to Shiva and Vishnu. He told all the sages, “I am the supreme godhead. There is no one else but me.”

While Brahma was thus instructing the sages, Vishnu arrived and was enraged at Brahma’s behaviour. “You are indeed ignorant,” he told Brahma. “I am the supreme godhead. You are only the creator. But I am, after all, the preserver.”

