Twitter Thread by Pam Keith, Esq.

Pam Keith, Esq.
@PamKeithFL

It would be a perversion of justice of the highest order if we prosecuted hundreds of people for participating in violent insurrection, but let the mastermind & ring leader skate to a life of luxury & golf every day.

No ONE in America has been better at evading justice & no one in America has been more deserving of punishment than Trump.

Nuremberg was not about holding low level foot soldiers accountable. They paid a price, for sure, but it was the leaders who were publicly shamed and made to face the world for their crimes.

Imagine if Hitler had survived the allied liberation. Do you think ANYONE IN THE WORLD would have intimated he be let him go & allowed to retire in peace to promote global «healing» & «unity?»

Trump has the blood of 400,000 dead

Americans on his hands. He broke more laws while in office than we can shake a stick at!

Even the people who are suggesting that he be given a pass aren't doing so because he isn't deserving of punishment. They are doing so because they have a stake in preserving the world order in which wealthy, powerful white men get away with WHATEVER THE HELL they do.

The desperate, almost pathological need to preserve the mystique of powerful white men blocks out rational thinking about accountability & justice. The EXACT SAME mindset that justified giving basically no punishment to a Stanford swimmer who got caught violently raping a woman behind a dumpster, because it would dampen his «future prospects, » also justified letting Jeffrey Epstein live in luxury, unmolested by law enforcement while he trafficked in young girls.

This warped mindset thinks Trump should be let off the hook because the humiliation would be too much for him, and his loyalists would get upset.

WHO CARES??!!

R. Kelly’s fans were upset about him being held accountable too. Somehow that didn’t seem to bother prosecutors at all (although it might explain why it took so long to indict him).

America would NEVER be taken seriously again, and would lose all credibility in selling the merits of “democracy,” if we allowed the boldest, most lethal& dishonorable criminal in American history walks ... «to own the libs.»

It’s simply untenable. Trump MUST be convicted by the Senate, and indicted & prosecuted by every law enforcement agency that has a basis to do so. He needs to lose EVERYTHING, most especially the myth of his invincibility.