Some 240 people have been arrested, mostly in Amsterdam, after riots broke out in at least 10 cities across the Netherlands on Sunday evening.

Trouble first flared in Amsterdam and Eindhoven, where anti-coronavirus measure protestors turned up to demonstrate even though the gatherings had been banned.

Charming local traditions.

Dozens of youngsters, many honking horns in cars and on mopeds, went to the village's harbour area just after the 9pm deadline and set the drive-in coronavirus test centre on fire.

Great place to be if you're afraid of needles.

And of course its world famous cycling culture.

The tolerance and directness of its people.

A champion of the rule of law across the world

Its wildlife. Here a loose police horse running through Eindhoven.

Its VOC mentality.

Its great offer of performance art.
