One liners, inspired by that @yungdeleuze thread

The idea that ugly people have inner beauty is largely a myth

Spiritual beauty and physical beauty are related and mutually reinforcing

Sjws make themselves ugly because they have no idea how to be beautiful

Beauty is not nearly as subjective as you think

The children of sex-hating Christians became sex-hating sjws, same drama, different window dressing

Nearly every young woman is beautiful if she isn't fat, and grows out her hair

Women only love you when they know you don't need their love

I have never met an energetic fat person. Lazy body, lazy mind

The demonization of cigarette smoking is at least partly the cause of the obesity epidemic.

The energy you put into addiction has to go somewhere. You can't break an addiction, only replace it

Vanity is as fine a motivation as any to work hard for personal gain

You obsess over moral philosophy because you have no strong moral convictions

Deep in your bowels you know right from wrong

The most insufferable people are those who are unaware of the treachery of the self against the self

Most of our behaviors are modeled after the actions of people around us

If you could be friends with a great warrior or scholar you would find it much easier to be those things

Liberalism hurts us most by defaming all positive examples

The number of people in the world guarantees a high level of redundancy

Knowing you're redundant is unbearable. Everyone finds a lie to help them feel unique

The end of the world will not look the way you expect. Every generation thinks the world will end in their lifetime

The technocapital singularity, if it happens, won't save you from yourself

The Chinese won't save you from the baizuo, western man

When you read a complicated literary work, you are also reading yourself

Harry Potter is the worst thing that ever happened to the literate people of the West

Social science is secular theology.

It's even easier to lie with numbers than with words

Many people use the identity "nerd" to pretend to be a scientist, but they are only hermit crabs, stealing a discarded shell

It's amazing what you will do when a crowd cheers for you to do it

Everyone is tempted to lie to impress others, unless they think honesty will score them more points

The more people pay attention to you, the less you can say

We evolved to be discontent. It's adaptive

The contrarian, upon finding a group of people who share his ideas, feels compelled to attack them

Stop pretending you've read so many books that you haven't. A chapter, an introduction, a summary, a Wikipedia article don't count

The condition of man is to be a little too obsessed with novelty, to our detriment

Beliefs about things you can’t see or touch are fashion

Philosophy is a game with no objective

Thesis: Obama
Antithesis: Trump
Synthesis: Kanye
